DEBT ANNOUNCEMENT BEING AWAITED

JESS MORTENSEN CONTINUES TO HOLD LEAD IN DECATHLON

Los Angeles All-Around Performer Apparently Headed for New World Record Despite Weather Conditions—Barney Berlinger Displaces Wilson Charles to Take Second Place With Three Events Still to Be Contested.

Despite the brisk rain which handicapped the eleven athletes entered in the decathlon performance of the A. A. U. track and field championship, Jess Mortensen seemed certain of a new world record for the event as his lead continued to mount Saturday morning.

With three events yet to go, the Los Angeles athlete was in the lead with a grand total of 6,039.288. Barney Berlinger, University of Pennsylvania performer, moved into second place, displacing Wilson 'Buster' Charles, Haskell Indian star. Berlinger had scored 5,778.774 points for seven events and Charles had 5,770.114.

Find Error In Scores.

A re-check of Friday's decathlon scores revealed that Jesse Mortensen was leading (Buster) Charles by only two one-hundredths of a point at the conclusion of the first day's events. The officials announced that errors had been made in awarding points for the high jump and that Charles should have received about fifty more points than the first check showed. Mortensen's score was 4,244.07, while the Indian star had 4,244.05.

Mortensen, however, bounded ahead in the 110 meter high hurdles in which he turned in the best time of 15.7 seconds for 933.5 points and bringing his total for six events to 5,177.57. Charles lifted his total to 5,130.05, while Barney Berlinger was third with 4,937.69.

Mortensen further increased his margin in the discus throw. He tossed the plate 41.571 meters for 861.718 points and a grand total of 6,039.282. Berlinger's effort in the event was good enough to move him into second position in the unofficial reckoning, ahead of Charles.

Despite the rain Saturday morning, nearly a thousand spectators were in the stadium, hunting shelter under the balconies.

The track is well drained and it was believed that the senior A. A. U. track and field championships in the afternoon and evening could be carried out as scheduled. The rain, however, was expected to hamper aspirants for senior titles in their efforts to set new records.

Rain insurnce is carried on the meet and the financial success of it is assured if there is a tenth of an inch of rain between 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning and 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. It was believed that the fall would be heavier than this.

A. A. U. MEET WILL CONTINUE DESPITE RAIN

Officials indicated Saturday noon the A. A. U. championships program would be staged in the afternoon and evening, rain or shine.

Plenty of room under the balcony for 9,000 people assured spectators of a place to view the meet sheltered from the weather elements.

The cinder track, which drains quickly, would be in good shape for the runners according to indications early Saturday afternoon.

LIGHTNING KILLS FIVE IN SOUTH

Three Meet Death Standing Under Tree; Fire Wrecks Factory.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 4—(INS)—Various parts of the south today were checking up on damage wrought by thunder storms, which claimed a total of five lives.

Three men were killed by lightning at Blacksburg, Va., when a bolt struck a tree under which they were standing. The dead were Hersey Creasy, 45; Harvey Alls, 63, and Lester Alls, 30.

Eula Berrier, 40, a farmer, was killed by lightning in his home at Knoxville Tenn., and Lawill Entrekin, 65, was killed at Ellisville, Miss., while working in a cotton field.

Lightning struck the plant of the Union Tanning Co., at Old Fort, N. C., and set it afire. Damages were estimated at $150.000. The property was covered by insurance.

As Rogers Sees It

BEVERLY HILLS, July 4 — You remember I told you there was some awful good dead republicans. Well, the finest woman one of 'em all went when ex-Congresswoman Alice Robinson of Oklahoma died. Nick Longworth told me this story: "When they was voting on the soldiers' bonus she didn't believe in it in her own heart, and she told why and told that her action would mean her finish in congress. She told how she loved 'em and had fed 'em and spent every cent she ever had on 'em (and she had), but that she wouldn't vote against her conscience just to stay in congress." Nick said every man in the room went to her and complimented her on her bravery then went over and voted the way the most votes were back home. She was a fine old soul. Too fine for politics.

Yours, WILL.

HOOVER GOING TO HIS FISHING CAMP

U. S. Holiday Celebrated Abroad; Wilson Honored in Poland.

(By the Associated Press.)

Patriotic exercises and outings to shore and mountain resorts occupied the attention of citizens throughout the country Saturday, while their compatriots abroad gathered to celebrate Independence day on foreign soil.

Radio played an important part in the celebration of the day by broadcasting speeches and patriotic music from the programs of the principal gatherings.

Millions availed themselves of the double holiday to journey in search of recreation at bathing beaches, camps and rural retreats and to visit distant homes. The recent heat wave made the exodus greater than usual.

President Hoover hoped to go to his fishing camp on the Rapidan, but developments in connection with the Paris debt negotiations made the hour of his departure uncertain.

Several members of his cabinet and other government officials were in various parts of the country to take part in patriotic exercises.

Talks at Independence Hall.

Secretary of War Hurley was at Philadelphia to deliver an address at Independence hall, birthplace of the nation, where one of the most elaborate of the day's programs observed the signing of the Declaration of Independence 155 years ago.

There were special programs in honor of two presidents in widely separated parts of the world.

At Poznan, Poland, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was one of the speakers at the unveiling of a monument, executed by Gutzon Borglum, as a tribute to President Wilson for his part in freeing Poland. The monu-

BELIEVE MISSING PEOPLE DROWNED

Seek Bodies of Three Who Disappeared From Cruiser.

SEATTLE, July 4— (AP) —Three persons missing since they disappeared from the cabin cruiser Nona near Kingston, on Puget sound late Wednesday were given up for drowned today and efforts were concentrated on a search for their bodies.

The missing are Mrs. Carl O. Nelson, Ben Nelson, her brother in-law and Bernhart P. Knudsen, all of Seattle. With Mrs. Nelson's husband, they were on a cruise.

The husband, Carl Nelson, was arrested yesterday by Sheriff D. L. Blankenship, of Kitsap county. The officer said Nelson had admitted the party had been drinking and after he had fallen asleep he awoke to find them gone and the boat was grounded on the shore.

Neither of the men could swim and his wife was wearing heavy boots, Nelson said. Their wraps were found aboard.

GEORGE GRAHAM TAKEN BY DEATH

Pennsylvania Leader in Congress Stricken By Paralysis.

Chairman of Judiciary Had Served For Nine Terms.

ISLIP, N. Y., July 4—(AP)—Representative George S. Graham of Pennsylvania, chairman of the house judiciary committee, died at 8:25 a. m., (E. D. T.) today at his summer home. He was 80 years old.

Mr. Graham had been ill for several months, but his condition was not critical until two days ago when he was stricken by paralysis. From then until his death he remained in a coma.

A native of Philadelphia, Mr. Graham was a graduate of the University of Penensylvania and Lafayette college, Pa. He began his political career in 1877 when he became a member of the select council. In 1880 he was chosen district attorney of Philadelphia, a position which he held until 1898 when he went to the University of Pennsylvania as professor of criminal law and procedure.

He was elected to the sixty-third congress in 1913 and had served nine consecutive terms.

His wife and immediate family were at his bedside at the time of death.

Oldest Member In Congress.

WASHINGTON, July 4 —(AP)— Representative George Scott Graham was the oldest member in either house of congress and dean of the large republican delegation from the Kevstone state. He would have been 81 next September 13.

Immediately upon learning of the death, President Hoover dispatched a telegram of condolence on behalf of himself and Mrs. Hooverf.

The Philadelphian had served nine consecutive terms and was re-elected to the Seventy-second congress, receiving 34,000 out of 40.000 votes cast in the Second district.

Boy Eats "Snake;" Taken to Hospital; Not Seriously Ill

Donald Lloyd Kling's Fourth of July menu was not satisfactory—either to him or to his father and mother.

A box of "snakes in the grass," tiny pyramids that when lighted are transformed into writhing, curling monsters, was purchased for the Kling's Independence day celebration.

Donald, age 2, found the box and when noticed by his parents was eating one of the "embryo" snakes. Officer Joe Harbaugh, a neighbor, took him to St. Elizabeth's hospital where Dr. George E. Lewis, city physician, administered an antidote and put the boy to bed.

He is in no immediate danger and later Saturday was taken to his home at 6035 Kearney avenue.

VANDERBILT AND ARNO FINALLY COME TO BLOWS

Long Bitterness Shows Itself in a Chance Meeting of Pair.

SAY ARTIST CAME OFF SECOND BEST

Railroad Police Quell Disturbance In Short Order.

RENO, Nevada, July 4—(AP)—After three weeks of threats and counter threats, Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., and Peter Arno actually came to blows here yesterday and the satirical artist ,according to eye witnesses, came off second best.

A chance meeting at the railroad station, a remark by Arno and the two squared off to the amazement and delight of a throng of onlookers.

Through George Killmer, his private detective, Vanderbilt late yesterday issued the first authoritative statement concerning the affair. In it Arno was accused of making an insulting remark regarding Mrs. May Vanderbilt, who has been sued for divorce in the Reno courts by the scion of the wealthy New York family.

Say Struck Arno.

Vanderbilt, the statement continued, then struck Arno as the latter started to enter a railway car, and the cartoonist fell in the car platform. The disturbance was quickly quelled by railway police.

Killmer said that Mrs. Florence Rice Smith, daughter of Grantland Rice, noted sports writer, left on the same train as that taken by Arno. Numerous reports have linked the couple in a romance, but both have denied that they contemplated marriage. Arno was divorced last Monday by Lois Long Arno, while Mrs. Smith obtained a decree from Sidney O. Smith, New York broker, several weeks ago.

Divorce Fight Foreseen.

With Arno's departure, the next step in the entangled affairs of Vanderbilt and his wife, the former Mary Davidson Weir of Chicago, probably will be the consummation of the divorce action now pending, with a bitter contest still a possibility. Their case is set for trial next Monday.

UPSET FOLLOWS FATAL ACCIDENT

Car Carrying Lincoln People Overturns On Way to Kansas.

Mrs. C. E. Protzman, 1700 Pawnee street. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson and a fourth person escaped injury late Friday night when their automobile overturned near Harvard, Neb. The four were enroute to Goodland, Kas. where Miss Hattie Protzman, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Protzman is recovering from injuries suffered in an automobile accident that cost the life of another young woman early Friday morning. Dr. Protzman said Saturday morning that none of the four was hurt badly, and they probably will return to Lincoln. Their car was wrecked.

Miss Protzman is one of seven girls playing in Boots and Her Buddies orchestra which is on a short midwestern tour. Their car was sideswiped by another machine, and Miss Edna Rummerfield, 18, Omaha, was killed. The others escaped injury. Alta "Boots" Nelson, Seward is director of the orchestra which was to have gone on an extended tour after the one which ended in the wreck Friday.

In a telephone conversation Friday evening Miss Protzman told her family that her injuries were not serious. Miss Helen Thompson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Hampton, Lincoln was the only other Lincoln girl in the orchestra.

Coolidge Celebrates Fifty-Ninth Birthday Anniversary Quietly

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 4—(I. N. S.)—Fifty-nine years ago today in a modest farmhouse high up in Plymouth Notch, Vermont, a boy was born. They named him Calvin Coolidge. He was destined to become president of the United States.

Quetly the former president celebrated his birthday with his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns at the Stearns summer home, Red Gables on Little Point, near where the Coolidges, during the first year of Mr. Coolidge's administration, established a "summer white house."

HIGHWAY PATROL TO BE RESUMED

$50,000 Appropriation Goes Into Effect For Activity.

Buck Taylor Mentioned For Post as Gas Tax Sleuth.

Among the emergency appropriations made by the legislature at its special session in June which became available on July 1 and can now be drawn upon is one for $50,000 to be expended in the public works department for patrolling state highways and enforcing motor vehicle laws.

That line of work was discontinued at the beginning of the Bryan administration, and the governor recommended that it be placed under the state sheriff. The legislature refused to do this and attached a clause to the appropriation item specifying that the activities should be conducted "by and only through the secretary of the department of public works."

It has not been announced what Governor Bryan will do or permit to be done about re-establishing the highway patrol. It was in charge of Buck Taylor during the Weaver regime. Taylor had two assistants.

The three automobiles that were bought by the public works department two years ago for the use of highway patrol officers were turned over to the state sheriff's office last winter, at Governor Bryan's direction. Before patrol work can be resumed, either these machines must be returned or new ones purchased in their place.

Gas Tax Berth for Taylor?

Rumors are heard at the capitol that Buck Taylor may be employed by State Treasurer Bass to assist in rounding up "gasoline bootleggers" and compel them to pay the tax of 4 cents per gallon on fluid shipped into Nebraska and sold here without being reported.

A special fund of $30,000 was appropriated by the legislature for Complete Agreement on Hoover Suspension Plan Confidently Expected Saturday—Mellon and Edge Confer With Finance Minister Flandin—French Cabinet Meeting Scheduled for Later in Day.

PARIS, July 4—(AP)—The Franco-American conversations over the Hoover war debt plan will be resumed at the ministry of interior at 9:30 o'clock tonight, it was announced at the conclusion of the meeting of the French cabinet this afternoon.

WASHINGTON, July 4—(AP)—Acting Secretary Castle of the state department said today "there was no change overnight" in the status of the negotiations between France and the United States concerning President Hoover's war debt holiday proposal.

Mr. Castle made his statement after a two hour conference in the president's office attended also by Acting Secretary Mills of the treasury.

During the time they were in the president's office they received a trans-Atlantic telephone communication from Secretary Mellon, who is bearing the brunt of negotiations in Paris.

Castle said that France and the United States were in accord on all the major points that have been in dispute.

Immediately after the conference, President Hoover departed for his Rapidan camp and does not expect to be back in the capital until Monday morning.

Castle said that Secretary Mellon would confer again today with the French and that he expected a further communication from him some time after 3:30 o'clock, eastern standard time.

PARIS, July 4—(AP)—Secretary of Treasury Mellon and Ambassador Edge conferred at noon today with Finance Minister Flandin on the two points still at issue between France and America in connection with President Hoover's war debt plan. The conference was held at the ministry of finance.

The American negotiators talked with the finance minister more than half an hour.

It was said at the ministry that previous to the cabinet meeting this afternoon Mr. Mellon would communicate to M. Flandin a note definitely outlining the American point of view on the points discussed.

Burke, Von Elm Tied for Lead National Open

INVERNESS CLUB, Toledo, O., July 4—(AP)—Billy Burke of Greenwich, Conn., and George Von Elm, Detroit, were tied at 181 strokes at the forty-fifth hole of the seventy-second hole battle for the national open golf championship at Inverness today. Burke gained a tie with the Prussian on the first nine holes today with a 36 as Von Elm got a 37.

A stroke behind the two leaders came Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente, Cal., who picked up with a par-breaking 34 on his outward nine today, to creep up, and Charlie Guest, Deal, N. J., who scored a 36 to keep heads up in the fight.

Three of the leaders came in with fine fifty-four hole totals. Guy Paulsen, the big surprise package from Fort Wayne, Ind., scored a 74 on his first round today for a 220 total, while MacDonald Smith of New York took a 75 for a 221. Leo Diegel, on the strength of a 74, totalled a 222. Eddie Williams of Cleveland, another dark horse, blew up with an 81 for a 226 total.

Rain and Fireworks Ban Combine To Give Lincoln Peaceful Fourth

It was a safe and sane and peaceful Fourth of July—the city's second without fireworks—that greeted Lincoln Saturday. A drizzling rain dampened Independence day spirit and discouraged adventuresome youngsters who dared to shoot an ocasional firecracker in violation of the city ordinance.

Sparklers, colored flares and pinwheels were the only types of fireworks Lincoln children could enjoy lawfully.

National as well as local attention focused on the A. A. U. meet. But there were a few other things of special interest. A gigantic display of fireworks at 11 o'clock Saturday night was promised at Capitol Beach. Fortunate Lincoln children were going with the parents to country clubs outside the city limits to celebrate the Fourth with a "bang" or several "bangs."

Joy at Institutions.

Most of the institutions which are the homes for nearly 400 children here had plans for something in the way of a celebration. At Tabitha home, forty children were getting ready to welcome the Tabitha home 24-piece band which has been in Colorado on a concert tour.

Crisp, fried chicken, lemonade and ice cream were dinner menus at the Orthopedic hospital for ninety children and at Whitehall, state home for dependent children, for a hundred more. Balloons, tiny flags and toys were distributed early on the morning of the Fourth at the hospital. Races, games and contests with appropriate prizes were to be held Saturday afternoon at Whitehall.

The hundred children at St. Thomas' orphange had planned to picnic in a park nearby.

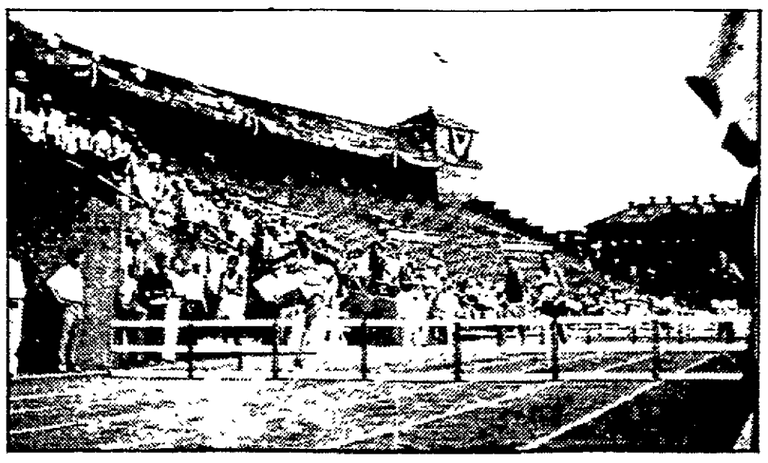

Gun Club Shoot.

But the holiday was not planned for children alone. The Lincoln Gun club shoot was held at its traps south of the municipal airport Saturday morning and the Lincoln baseball team was to meet York at Landis field in the evening. Golf events and athletic contests for adults as well as youngsters were planned at the Lincoln Country club, the Shrine club, and the Eastridge club.

Swimming pools were almost empty in the morning. A scant dozen went into the municipal pool and only a few splashed in the salt water at Capitol beach.

Police were under orders to enforce the anti-fireworks ordinance but only one violation was reported by mid-morning. The offending youngsters were dismissed with a reprimand. An occasional "boom" escaped the surveillance of the officers, but they were very occasional.

COLORED YOUTHS WIN HURDLE RACES IN FAST TIME AT JUNIORS A. A. U. MEET

The finishes of two time-smashing hurdle races in the national junior A. A. U. meet at the Nebraska Memorial stadium Friday afternoon are shown above. At the left, Amsden Oliver, lanky Roosevelt high school athlete from Dayton, O., is shown winning the 220-yard low hurdles in 23.3 seconds, setting a new junior A. A. U. mark. Oliver won both hurdle races in the national high school meet this year and ran away with the field in the low hurdles here Friday.

At the right is shown part of the field in the 440-yard low hurdles, won by Beatty of Western State Teachers college, Michigan, who has a safe lead in the picture. He won the finals in the remarkably fast time of 53.5 seconds but tipped over one hurdle so that the mark does not stand as a record.

Arthur C. Johnson, Former Lincoln Man, Dies in Illinois

Arthur C. Johnson, a former resident of Lincoln, died at the home of his parents in Park Ridge, Ill., Saturday, June 27, after a long illness.

He was married on October 23, 1915, to Mattie H. Cavett of Phillips and they made their home in Lin- from 1918 to 1922 where he was employed by Curtis, Towle & Paine. Mrs. Johnson was a nurse in the Lincoln public schools during this time. She died July 8, 1930. He was a member of the Plymouth Congregational church.

He is survived by two sons, Arthur, 10, and Robert, 5, his parents and two brothers.

BRUNDAGE SEES FIGHT IN 1932

Says America Will Not Win Next Olympics Without Struggle.

"It's impossible for me to conceive of an American victory in the Olympic games of 1932 in Los Angeles without a struggle," Avery Brundage, president of the Amateur Athletic union, declared in a talk before 300 A. A. U. athletes, coaches and officials at a dinner given by the Lincoln chamber of commerce at the chamber Friday evening.

"I am pleased with the showing of the athletes in the meet in Lincoln," he said, "but just because we are producing record-breakers is no sign that we will win the Olympics. Ray Barbuti's victory in the 400-meter run in the 1928 games was the only American track victory. Other countries throughout the world, we are beginning to realize, are developing champions."

Friendly to Lincoln.

J. H. Agee, president of the chamber of commerce, in introducing Mr. Brundage, declared that Lincoln hoped the A. A. U. meet would return to the city again. Mr. Brundage, answering, said that "Lincoln has a friendly atmosphere that we like. We like to come here for Nebraskans think as we do."

Joe E. Brown, famous movie comedian, who is filming "Local Boy Makes Good," his latest comedy, before A. A. U. crowds, spoke briefly. Coloring his talk with a dash of humor, Brown praised the A. A. U. officials for the work they were doing for competitive athletics.

"It has always been my opinion," he said, "that development of the body has gone hand in hand with development of the mind. I have two boys of my own and I am looking forward to the day when they, too, will win some of the gold medals that were won today."

Harriet Cruise Kemmer, accompanied by Harold Turner, sang several selections. Eddie Jungbluth's orchestra provided music during the dinner.

Union Services at Wesley Methodist

Caldwell Memorial United Brethren, Wesley Methodist Emmanuel Covenant and the Second Methodist churches are beginning a series of union evening services Sunday. The first of these meetings will be held Sunday at the Wesley Methodist church at Eighteenth and J streets when Rev. G. T. Savery, chairman of the union, will preside. The Wesley church will furnish the music and Rev. Mr. Graham will deliver the sermon. His subject is "The Spiritual Foundation of Peace."

The young people of the churches have organized a forum that will meet at 7 o'clock each Sunday evening at the church where the evening service is being held. A general theme has been outlined for the series of discussions, centering around "A Balanced Program of Life." Orville Schwier of the Second Methodist church is chairman of the forum. Glennis Knox will be the leader Sunday evening with the subject for discussion "Is Higher Education Worthwhile."

POPE ATTACKS FASCIST PARTY

Encyclical in Defense Of Catholic Action Society Released.

Charges Attempt Made To Tear Away Young From Church.

VATICAN CITY, July 4—(AP)—A papal attack on the fascist party for its attitude toward the church and a defense of the Catholic Action society were before the Catholic world today.

Pope Pius XI in an encyclical letter made his first detailed explanation of the current controversy between the church and state over the closing of youthful organizations affiliated with Catholic action.

Neither Premier Mussolini nor the party itself was mentioned by name, but the reference was plain in the pope's statement concerning "irreverences and violences which took place in the presence of and with the participation of members of a political party."

"That which was desired and that which was attempted was to tear away from the Catholic Action society and through the process to tear away from the church the young, and all the young," said the encyclical.

"This confirmation is made all the more explicit and categorical, we were almost about to say solemn and violent, by the one who not only represents all, but who can do all and who confirms it in official or quasi-official publications dedicated to the young."

Pontiff Opposes Control.

The pontiff opposed in vigorous terms the allegedly anti-Catholic activities of facismo and its control over the young.

"We cannot be grateful," he wrote at another point, "to one who after putting out of existence socialism and anti-religious organizations . . . has permitted them to be so generally readmitted . . . and has made them even stronger and more dangerous inasmuch as they are now hidden and also protected by their new uniform.

"You ask us . . . what is to be thought about the formula of an oath which even little boys and girls are obliged to take about executing orders without discussion from an authority which . . . can give orders against all truth and justice. The answer from the Catholic point of view and also from a human point of view is inevitably only one, such an oath as it stands is illicit."

Charges that the Catholic Action society had political aims were untrue, the pope said, and its disbanding throughout Italy was a crime against the church.

The closing of the youth clubs, he said, was carried out "with tactics which would give the impression that action was being taken against a dangerous organization of criminals."

Many officers of the law rebelled against this duty, he said, "but in sad contrast to the manner of these officials there were many acts of violence extending even to the striking in blows and the drawing of blood.

Muriel Vanderbilt Church to Marry; Surprises Society

NEW YORK, July 4—(AP)— The forthcoming marriage of Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Church, divorced wife of Frederic Cameron Church, jr., former Harvard football star, to Henry D. Phelps of Newport, R. I., caused much comment in social circles today.

Announcement of the engagement by Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, Mrs. Church's mother, was a surprise.

Mr. Phelps, like Mr. Church, is an Episcopalian. Mrs. Church is the daughter of William K. and Virginia Fair Vanderbilt, who were married in a Catholic ceremony, the bride being a Catholic. Their two daughters, Muriel and Consuelo, were brought up Catholis.

Muriel was married to Church in an Episcopalian ceremony, in 1925 but when her sister Consuelo married Earl E. T. Smith at a Catholic ceremony six months later, the Churchs were remarried this time by a Catholic priest. Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt were divorced in 1927 and Mr Vanderbilt married Mrs. Rosamond Lancaster Warburton. Mrs. Church obtained a divorce in 1929.

The wedding will probably take place late in August or early in September. Mrs. Vanderbilt is due home from France about that time.

Phelps is a Providence bond salesman. He is a graduate of St. George's school, Newport. His father, Edgar Morris, is a gentleman farmer, whose estate is several miles from Mrs. Church's property. Mrs. Church, wealthy in her own right, is an ardent horsewoman.

CANADA REPORTS HALF WHEAT CROP

WINNIPEG, Man., July 4—(AP)—Conditions of the crop in Saskatchewan, Canda's great grain-growing province, are 46 to 48 per cent of normal, according to the ninth report issued by the Canadian Bank of Commerce covering crop conditions in the prairie west. Manitoba's wheat crop is rated 50 to 55 per cent, and Alberta's wheat crop is not classed in percentage.

WOMAN SUES FOR $50,000.

BELLEVILLE, Ill., July 4—(AP)—Mrs. Irene Dare of Belleville, described as a "widow about 30 years old," has filed a $50,000 breach of promise suit against Albert Wilson, 55, wealthy retired Belleville saloonkeper. Wilson, a widower, denied he had ever been engaged to Mrs. Dare.

Our 155th Birthday
The U. S. Dinosaur
France Consents to What?
Three Deaths for $24

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

The glorious Fourth comes again, and finds us less self-reliant than we were when the old style Americans, at Philadelphia, declared the equality of all men in high sounding language, slapped mosquitoes that were biting their legs and heard Benjamin Franklin say they must all hang together or hang separately.

Something has happened to our independence and equality. We have got very rich since 1776, that may have something to do with it.

George Washington, said to have been the richest man of his day, would be scarcely a respectable "prospect" for a broker now.

Also our country has grown bigger since 1776. Taking in gigantic Alaska, Florida, Texas, California, etc., has perhaps made us too big to act as a unit.

Dinosaurs died out, when they reached a certain size. The biggest of them had to have a second brain, located half way down the spine to take care of the lower bodily activities.

Perhaps this country has grow too big to be managed from one spot in the District of Columbia, and needs a "supplementary brain" somewhere between Washington and Bering Straits.

Of what are the "highly civilized, self-ruling, free and independent, all-men-equal" Americans, thinking on this 155th anniversary of their freedom.

Many are thinking about the stock market.

Millions are talking about the Stribling-Schmeling prize fight. There is more interest in those two prize fighters today than in the entire group that signed the Declaration of Independence.

However, it isn't such a gloomy national birthday. After all we are very rich, some of us, although we have a depression. We are free, if you are not too particular about your definition of freedom.

We have fine public schools, most important for the future. And although we don't use it intelligently, we have the ballot, and we can do whatever we like, whenever we choose to do it.

All we require is a little more thinking and that may come.

Most interesting news, apart from the prize fight, is that the United States and France are supposed to have reached an agreement on the proposed debt moratorium.

Senator Morrow, who has been staying at the White House, advising with the President on financial matters in which Morrow is an expert, has gone for his holiday in Maine. Washington says: "Morrow would not have gone away if the matter had not been settled."

Just how it has been settled, if it has been settled, you will know later. The French do not let go easily. It will probably turn out that the settlement is along lines indicated by them, lines that will, at least, not decrease their net income.

Last year, in the Bronx, New York city, Samuel Brudner, butcher, was murdered in a holdup in his shop. Night before last three young men that engaged in the murder and got $24 from it were put to death in the Sing Sing electric chair.

It was the usual execution, except that two of the murderers wore white carnations pinned on to their prison clothes, as they went to the chair. Fathers and mothers of the three executed stood outside of prison weeping, hammering on the prison gates, pleading for the lives of the men, Nicholas Leonelli, 23; Ferdinand Mangianele, 24; Fred Carmosino, 19, who went to death.

It was only one incident in our crime wave, and is mentioned only to warn young criminals that the death chair is a reality, and in the long run crime does not pay.

Small blessings are thankfully received in Wall street. News from Paris, although nobody knew just what it was, made speculators and investors lift up their hearts, and stock prices. "Big steel," which had slowly and sadly drifted down below 84 recently, hopped up and closed at 105.

The London stock market was cheerful. The moratorium means that London stops paying us, for a year at least. France, also, stops paying us if she joins in the moratorium.

In fact everybody stops paying us and we don't stop paying anybody. The ignorant man would say: "If that is a bull tip so is the measles."

More antireligious rioting in Spain.

In the town of Corunna a mob attacked religious orders following a meeting in which it had been resolved to prevent the return to Corunna of priests and nuns driven out in earlier outbreaks. The monastery of San Jose de la Montana was set on fire. It was unoccupied and saved by firemen. Six of the rioters were shot, one, probably, will die.

The rioters, made up of ultra-radical syndicalists, had been lashed to a pitch of intense excitement at a meeting in the Corunna bull ring.

Rome reports no progress in the negotiations between the Vatican and the Italian government concerning suppression of Catholic clubs throughout Italy.

The Italian government declares that these Catholic clubs engage in political activities and are organized for that purpose. That statement is denied by the Pope, who demands proof. The hostility to the Catholic church, suddenly developing among Catholic Latin peoples, in Mexico, Spain and Italy, is difficult to explain.

U. S. GIRL HONORED.

OXFORD, Eng., July 4—(AP)—Miss Ruth Eldridge of San Antonio, Tex., member of a party of eleven American boys and girls now on a good will visit to England, today had the unusual honor of acting as deputy for the mayoress of Oxford. Because of the illness of the mayoress, it was decided to have one of the American girls act as deputy, the names being drawn out of a hat.

COLLAPSE LOCAL POWER DEPLORED

Hurley Points to Present Day Need for Federal Policing.

Condemns Efforts Toward Extension of National Authority.

PHILADELPHIA, July 4—(AP)—From Independence hall, birthplace of the constitution and the Declaration of Independence, Secretary Hurley today deplored the "breakdown of local self-government" that has led to federal enforcement of police regulations.

Condemning efforts toward extension of federal authority, he said:

"In some quarters so complete is the breakdown of local self-government that for years it has found no vulnerable spot in the armor of a super bandit who threatens the lives and property of the citizens until finally the national government must srike him in his Achilles heel of income tax evasion."

Criticises Dole System.

The secretary of war criticised those who "would condone the steady encroachment of bureaucracy" and characterized the unemployment dole as "the most unsound and benumbing soporific ever recommended as a palliative for an economic ill."

American achievements, he said, constitute a "record of the triumph of individual initiative and courage."

Hurley said the business depression, through which the country is now pasing "does not repudiate our economic system" but "it has indicated to us the necessity of improving our economic system by providing for a greater and more equitable distribution of wealth and by stabilizing the basic economic forces of the nation."

Calls on Local Powers.

Asserting that it has been difficult through the strains of war and the stress of rapid peace-time development to maintain a perfect balance between the states and national government, Hurley quoted Thomas Jefferson as calling for state enforcement of police powers.

"And yet today," he said, "we have many self-proclaimed heirs of Thomas Jefferson seizing upon the opportunity of difficult times to push their schemes for the further extension of the powers of the federal government.

"They view with complacency and indifference the spectacle of a sovereign state, a great municipality, relying upon federal agencies for the enforcement of local police regulations."

Nancy Carroll Is Trying Marriage For Second Time

Weds Editor of Life In Connecticut; On Canada Trip.

NEWTOWN, Conn., July 4—(AP)—Nancy Carroll, who rose from the back row of a chorus to a leading screen actress, was bound for Canada today, with her new husband, Francis Bolton Mallory, magazine editor and former Princeton professor.

They were married yesterday in the Newtown town hall in a civil ceremony by Justice of the Peace Edward S. Pitzschler. Miss Carroll, born Ann Lahiff, is 25 and a Catholic. Her husband, her second, is a Protestant.

Nancy Carroll and her first husband, Jack Kirkland, former newspaper man and playwright, were divorced a month ago in a Mexican decree. They have a 7-year-old daughter.

It was Mallory's third marriage. The 33-year-old managing editor of the magazine Life was once a New York reporter, an advertising man and a professor of English. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan and served during the war in the air forces.

Jack Kirkland, when informed of his divorced wife's wedding, said:

"I wish her all happiness, and I congratulate him. But I must say it didn't take long."

BORING OF HOOVER DAM TUNNEL STARTS

Secretary Wilbur Sets Off First Explosive Tearing Away Several Hundred Tons of Rock.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., July 4—(AP)—Secretary of the Interior Wilbur pressed a button yesterday and set off the first explosive starting the tunnels through which the Colorado river will be diverted during the construction of Hoover dam, main unit of the world's largest reclamation and power project.

The secretary was accompanied to the dam site by Dr. Elwood Mead, federal commissioner of reclamation, house appropriations sub-committeeman headed by Representative Frank Murphy and other officials.

The explosion tore away several hundred tons of rock.

Leaving last night, the party headed for Los Angeles to continue its tour of reclamation and park projects.

Hawthorne Bible School Concludes Four Weeks Term

The fifth annual vacation Bible school for the Hawthorne community closed its four weeks session Friday. Ninety-two boys and girls were enrolled in the school and seventy-four certificates were awarded those who attended fifteen days or more. Fifty-two of the pupils made a perfect attendance record.

All of the children took part in an hour's program Thursday which was given before their parents and friends. Following the program the visitors inspected the hand work done by the children at the school.

The school was held in the Hawthorne Methodist church under the direction of Mrs. C. F. Keefer who had charge of the four previous sessions. Besides directing the school, Mrs. Keefer taught the beginners class, assisted by Ruth Wittstruck and Leola Husemoller. The primary department was in charge of Miss Hazel Beechner assisted by Wilma Bute. The juniors were taught by Miss Evelyn assisted by Margaret McGehon.

SIXTY INJURED IN RAIL CRASH

Holiday Travelers Hurt As Trains Meet Head-on.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 3—(AP)—Revised reports from hospitals and private sources today placed at over sixty the number of persons injured in a head-on collision on the New Haven railroad of the Merchants Limited and train No. 86, bound for Springfield, Mass. The limited was bound for New York from Boston.

The trains, traveling slowly, met in a cut a third of a mile from the New Haven station. The limited was approaching the station, the other train was leaving. Both trains were crowded with holiday travelers.

Forty of the injured, almost all of them passengers on the Springfield train, were taken to hospitals. More than a score were treated privately. Four of the injured were in a seriout condition today.

Officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad were unable to acount for the acident, but said Train 86 was on the wrong track.

The limited is an all-steel train. The Springfield train was made up largely of wooden cars.

The engine of the Springfield train was lifted partly in the air by the impact. The smoking car telescoped half way on to the coal car of the locomotive and caught fire when its roof came in contat with electric wires, furnishing current for trains on some portions of the road. Both trains in the collision were drawn by steam locomotives.

Joy Rider Sent To Kearney State Industrial School

Thomas Katsantoness, 15, 2031 K, was sent to the state industrial school at Kearney, and Gregory Mitchell, 15, 1431 S street, was returned to the detention home to await further action of the court when both boys confessed before Juvenile Court Judge Broady Friday afternoon to stealing a car Monday night from the Auto Clearing House, 1720 O street. The car was later wrecked when it went over an embankment six miles northeast of Crete while the boys were on a "joy ride."

At the time of the escapade, Katsantoness was under a suspended sentence to Kearney issued by Judge Chappell in connection with the theft of another automobile early in May. Mitchell has admitted theft of three automobiles, and has been up before the juvenile court on one previous ocasion. Judge Broady said that he could see little difference in the cases of the two boys other than that Katsantoness was under the suspended sentence. The probation officers, Mrs. W. M. Morning and Jack Leonard, recommended that Mitchell be committed to Kearney but that the sentence be suspended and the youth be given one more chance to make good.

Mrs. Antonie Katsantoness, mother of Thomas, protested vigorously against the action of the court in delaying action in the Mitchell case. Court attaches found it necessary to call Deputy County Sheriff James Davis to quiet the woman.

Nation Promised Cool, Comfortable Celebration Day

(By The Associated Press.)

A cool and comfortable Fourth of July was the weather man's prediction for Saturday.

Recovering from the summer's first heat wave, the nation went forth to celebrate the 155th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

From the Rockies to the Appalachians, breezes and scattered showers kept the country cool.

Farmers, alone, were sorrowing. They took stock of their damaged crops and stock—scorched, ruined and killed by the ten-day siege of blistering heat which took almost 1,200 human lives.

Pays 50 Cents Each Day to Keep Chicago Pastor Behind Bars

CHICAGO, July 4—(AP)—The Rev. Phillip Yarrow is being kept in jail on the installment plan.

Walter Shaver, a bookseller, appeared yesterday at the county jail and paid officials $3.50 to keep Mr. Yarrow in jail for another week.

Shaver was awarded a $5,000 judgment against the minister some time ago on a charge of malicious prosecution in connection with Shaver's arrest for selling a book which Mr. Yarrow alleged was obscene. Mr. Yarrow failed to pay and was lodged in jail.

Under the law, Shaver must pay 50 cents a day for the minister's board.

Mr. Yarrow's friends are trying to raise a bond for his release pending an appeal.

Three Arrested In Pre-Holiday Beer Raids Here

The raids by Lincoln police Friday night netted three arrests, ninety-seven quarts of alleged beer and ten gallons of alleged beer mash. Ralph Mallory, 32, 4432 Touzalin avenue, is in jail charged with illegal possession of fifty-two quarts of alleged beer seized when Detectives Weygint and Meyer and Deputy State Sheriff Battan raided his home.

Detectives Weygint, McCurdy, Meyer and Carroll, Officer Fisher and Deputy Sheriff Battan next visited the home of Roy Pillard, 31, 2548 North Twelfth street, and confiscated forty-one quarts of alleged beer, ten gallons of alleged beer mash and one half pint of alleged whiskey. He was booked for possession.

After an unfruitful call at the home of Merrill Steward, 24, 3540 X street, earlier in the evening, Detective Weygint and Officer Robbins made a hurryup return visit, and found four quarts of alleged beer. He was booked for illegal possession.

RUBIO BOYS MAY CHANGE SCHOOLS

Mexican President Instructs Sons to Quit Kansas College.

MEXICO CITY, July 4—(AP)—President Pascual Ortiz Rubio was reported in newspapers today to have instructed his two sons to sever their connections with an American college in Kansas and to continue their education in Canada next fall.

The boys, Fernando and Guiggermo, were said to have been instructed to leave the United States and go to the dominion to make arrangements for the resumption of their college careers. The statements were not credited to an official source and no confirmation was immediately available.

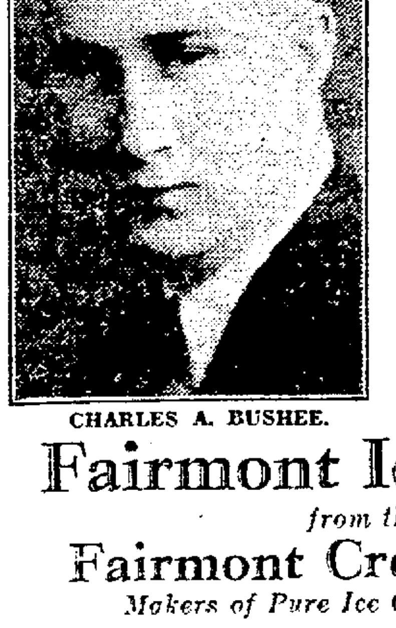

The boys were students during the past year in St. Benedicts college at Atchison, Kas., and were classmates of the two Mexican students, one a cousin of President Ortiz Rubio, who were slain by a deputy sheriff's bullets at Ardmore, Okla., last month. They are understood to be employed by a firm in New York for the vacation period.

The acquittal of the deputy sheriff brought on a storm of dissatisfaction in Mexican student circles and a movement is under way to cancel enrollment of Mexican students in American schools.

Congregational and Christian Councils Finish Convention

SEATTLE, July 4—(AP)—The convention of the National Council of Congregational and Christian churches ended here last night after nine days of sessions in which the union of the two bodies was consummated.

A recommendation that a commission be appointed to study means of securing more equitable compensation for ministers, and a seminar report urging legislation prohibiting "block booking" of moving pictures were adopted as part of the final business.

Arrests Made Of Supposed Nebraska Bandits; Slain Nebraskan Feared He Would Be Killed

COMPANION OF BANNING TAKEN

Second Suspect in Murdock Bank Robbery In Custody.

Both Men Deny Participating in Cass County Holdup.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., July 4—(AP)—With the arrest of Harry Botroff of St. Joseph, Mo., at Shenandoah, Ia., late yesterday, local police today announced that both men who took part in the holdup of M. B. Barish and his family at Omaha Wednesday night were in custody.

Herman Banning, 25, the second member of the robber pair, also of St. Joseph, yesterday was identified as one of three men who on June 27 held up and robbed the Bank of Murdock, Murdock, Neb., of $1,250. Nebraska authorities are planning to file charges of bank robbery against him.

Banning today was recovering from the effects of eight shotgun wounds, suffered early Thursday during a gun fight with Council Bluffs officers in a farm yard near here.

Admits Association.

Botroff, under questioning by police, today admitted that he and Banning had been associating recently with a third man, whom police are seeking. Both he and Banning have steadfastly denied complicity in the Omaha robbery or the Murdock bank holdup. Part of the Barish loot was found in a Shenandoah home where Banning was apprehnded.

Botroff was captured yesterday yesterday after a long chase through a small section of Shenandoah. At noon yesterday, Deputy Sheriff Ray Cleveland of Shenandoah received a tip that a man carrying a bundle was seen to enter the home where Banning was arrested Thursday. Starting out for the man, Cleveland and a special officer sighted him and gave chase. He was captured after a three hour chase.

Employes of the Bank of Murdock are scheduled to return here Monday morning to view Botroff, in an attempt to link him with that robbery.

FIRST WHEAT SOLD.
(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., July 4—The first new wheat marketed here was sold today to Black Bros., mill by John Barnard. It tested 56 and 57 pounds and yielded twenty-one bushels. It was cut with a combine.

FALL FROM BED FATAL TO CHILD

OMAHA, July 4—(AP)—Gordon Schwatka, 7-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Schwatka, Omaha, was fatally injured today when he fell from his bed. He died before medical aid reached him, his neck being broken.

Mrs. Schwatka had placed the tot on her bed and stepped into another room when she heard him fall, gasping for breath. She summoned three neighbor women, Mrs. B. O. Brown, Mrs. R. H. Armstrong and Mrs. Glen Hayward, but their efforts to revive him failed.

NEBRASKANS FOR EXTRA SESSION

Sign Petition For Call For Relief Of Unemployment.

WASHINGTON BUREAU
THE LINCOLN STAR.

WASHINGTON, July 4—A number of Nebraskans are among the nearly 1,200 mayors, economists, labor leaders, preachers, educators, and social workers who have signed a memorial to the president, members of congress and others, urging an immediate special session of congress to enact a program of relief for unemployment.

Federal appropriations of at least $3,000,000,000 for public works, $250,000,000 for direct relief, and $250,000,000 for state unemployment insurance systems are petitioned in the memorial which was drafted by a committee of which Prof. John Dewey, president of the peoples' lobby, is chairman.

Prior to the drafting of the memorial, Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska had already announced himself as favoring a special session of congress to aid in unemployment relief.

Among the Nebraska signers of the memorial are Ray E. Hunt and Clarence E. McNeill of Lincoln, Prof. J. E. Taylor of Doane college, Eda Louise Redo of Omaha, and Cyrus J. Kephart of Shelby.

The signers "insist" that President Hoover promptly call congress into extra session, citing 6,000,000 persons unemployed, due to the depression, and as many more working part time on reduced incomes and a $9,000,000,000 loss in wages and salaries in 1930 among the conditions demanding measures for immediate relief.

NEBRASKA MAN IS DEAD OF INJURIES

SIOUX CITY, Ia., July 4—(AP)—Peter Nissen, 30, of Wayne, Neb., died in a Sioux City hospital Friday from injuries received Thursday near Jackson, Neb., when he was struck by an automobile which did not stop.

SUPERINTENDENT RETAINS OFFICE

One Elected as Successor Found to Be Not Qualified.

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., July 4—(AP)—Trial of a quo warranto suit over the office of county superintendent of schools in Sioux county was held in District ourt here and ended in favor of Miss Elizabeth Emery, who has held the office for several years. Miss Thelma E. Lawler, who was elected to the office last fall by a majority of 300, had asked the court to order Miss Emery to turn the office over to her. Miss Emery stated that Miss Lawler was not qualified because she did not hold a permanent elementary certificate or its equivalent.

Miss Lawler declared that her second grade high school certificate was its equivalent and said attaches of State Superintendent Taylor's office at Lincoln had told her so. A letter from the superintendent, staing that such a ertificate was not proper qualification, was introduced in evidence by attorneys for Miss Emery, who was permitted by court order to retain the office.

BISHOP DUFFY RESIGNS PLACE

Head of Grand Island Catholic Diocese in Poor Health.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., July 4—(AP)—Bishop James Albert Duffy, 56, head of the Grand Island diocese of the Catholic church, has resigned his post, due to ill health. He will continue, however, to serve here until a successor is named.

Bishop Duffy was named as bishop of the diocese of Kearney on January 27, 1913. In 1917 the seat of the diocese was moved to Grand Island and the name changed.

HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT.
(Special to The Star.)

PLYMOUTH, Neb., July 4—Mrs. Carl Hintz, living near here, was severely cut and bruised Wednesday when the car in which she an her husband were riding struck soft gravel and turned over in the ditch. Mr. Hintz escaped unhurt.

DR. J. C. TUCKER DIES.
(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., July 4—Dr. J. C. Tucker, 45, prominent oculist, died here Friday afternoon. His wife and two sons survive.

OLD RESIDENT DIES.

FREMONT, Neb., July 4—(AP)—Mrs. Lucinda Turner, 86, a Fremont pioneer, died at her home here last night. She had lived at the same location 58 years. She was the widow of W. H. Turner and was prominent in social affairs here. She and her husband celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in 1919. Funeral services will be held Sunday.

New Envoy to U. S.?

Introducing Count Charles de Chambrun, at present French Ambassador to Turkey, who, it is rumored, may be the next Ambassador of the French Republic to the United States. Paul Claudel, representing France at Washington now, is believed to have incurred displeasure because he did not notify his government immediately about the Hoover war debt holiday plan.

SEWARD NOTES

(Special to The Star.)

SEWARD, Neb., July 4—The Seward board of education has engaged an architect to provide plans for an eight room, fireproof modern school building, which will be erected this summer. At a mass meeting of school patrons this week it was explained that such a building could be erected for $30,000. No bond issue will be asked and the building will be erected out of funds that are on hand. The levy asked for this year is approximately $23,000 less than was collected last year.

Seward stores are closed today and the business men's division of the chamber of commerce has engaged a carnival company, and provided a fireworks display for entertainment. Swimming and dancing are other attractions. A concert by the municipal band will be given at 7:30 at the park.

Grain cutting is in full swing here. Predictions are that the yield around Seward will be 22 bushels to the acre.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week to Emil Mohling and Cleo H. Fielder of Hastings; Vernon Watts and Margaret Hunkins of Beaver Crossing; William H. Schluterbusch and Ruth Feather of Lincoln; Earl H. Brady and Theresa Martin of Fairbury. The last named couple was married by Judge Bek.

NOT PRESIDENT OF REPUBLICANS

Richards Declines to Serve As Head of State Club.

FREMONT, Neb., July 4—(AP)—L. D. Richards of Fremont, who two weeks ago was elected president of the newly organized Nebraska Republican club, Friday announced his resignation from that office. He said his election was without his consent.

Richards said his physical condition did not warrant his accepting the responsibilities of the office. He added that although he had been active in Nebraska republican circles for years, this was his first state party office.

DEATH AT FREMONT.

FREMONT, Neb., July 4—(AP)—Mrs. Oliver H. P. Shively, 88, resident of Dodge county since 1877, died here last night. She had lived in Fremont 46 years. Funeral services will be held Sunday.

POTATO CROP NOT RUINED BY PERIOD OF HOT WEATHER

The recent hot weather has delayed but not entirely ruined the eastern and central Nebraska potato crop, says H. O. Werner at the agricultural college in Lincoln. Letters and telephone calls indicate that backyard potato growers particularly are worried over the condition that exists underground in their patches. Only one or two little potatoes can be found in each hill, they tell Professor Werner.

Werner explains that the potato is not a hot weather crop. When the temperature gets up around 100, the potato plant spends all its time and energy keeping cool. When the temperature at night stays up around 70 to 80 as it did for several nights recently, the potato plant has no chance to rest or get ready for the next scorching day.

As a result no potatoes developed in the back yards or in the commercial fields during the last hot days of June. Weather like that provided by the weather man the week end of July 4 was favorable for potato growth, Werner says. Vines that were not burned during the hot spell will go right ahead producing potatoes, he believes.

Nothing can be done for the potatoes during a hot period. Cutting off part of the tops does more harm than good, experimental tests have shown. No amount of water in the soil will make the potatoes grow, although a plentiful supply of moisture will of course help keep the tops alive during extremely hot weather. Irrication of dry soil during cool weather will increase the potato yield.

Challengers Winnie Mae's Record Wait Favorable Weather

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., July 4—(AP)—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, jr., today still were awaiting favorable weather for their hopoff around the world, in which they hope to break the record set by the Winnie Mae.

Dr. James S. Kimball, government meteorologist and starter for trans-Atlantic fliers, notified the pair that unfavorable weather conditions would be prevalent over the north Atlantic perhaps today and tomorrow.

Pangborn and Herndon hope to make the flight in four hops. Both are pilots. They hope to alternate at sleeping and flying.

SAY ZIMMERMAN TOLD OF ENEMY

Former Nebraskan, Killed On Coast, Feared Such End.

HEMET, Cal., July 4—(AP)—Testimony that Frank Zimmerman, slain San Jocinto rancher and former Nebraskan, feared death from the hands of Frank Meeker, former resident of San Jacinto, was in the record of a coroner's inquest today.

Zimmerman's son-in-law, R. C. Johnson, testified yesterday that he "told me that if he were found dead, the authorities should begin looking for Meeker."

Residents of San Jacinto were unable to give the whereabouts of the man named. George A. French, deputy district attorney, declined to say whether a warrant would be sworn out for Meeker.

The jury brought in a verdict that Zimmerman, slain Tuesday in his garage, came to his death at the hands of a "person or persons unknown."

From the witness stand Johnson tended to discredit a theory Zimmerman had been killed because of a bootlegger's enmity growing out of a belief that the old man had acted as an informer for prohibition officers.

The son-in-law advanced as the only reason for enmity between Meker—who was seen in San Jacinto as late as last week—and Zimmerman, a quarrel over some furniture. Zimmerman came to San Jacinto about eight months ago from Beatrice, Neb.

NANCY PAGE

BY FLORENCE LA GANKE.

Fizzy Drinks Belong to a Day Like the Fourth of July.

The evening of the Fourth was beastly hot. There did not seem to be a breath of air stirring. The Pages sat on their porch and hoped that some callers would drop in to help pass the hours until late night brought cooling breezes. And sure enough callers did come. They talked about vacation trips, travel, business, children, bridge and all the other subjects, that are of common interest. But before long the conversation turned to cooling things to eat and drink.

Almost before she knew it Nancy was giving away some of her hot weather menus.

"We like a fizzy drink like root beer or ginger ale combined with cream. Some people use ice cream but we are quite apt to get a bottle of table cream from the refrigerator, pour glasses one-third full and then add chilled ginger ale or root beer. With those we like kinger cookies best.

When we have a bottle of rich creamy milk I like to fill footed tumblers with that and pass rich sugar cookies, chocolate brownies or chocolate wafers.

Iced chocolate is rich but it sometimes takes the place of a lunch when I have plenty of macaroons with it.

Iced coffee made by pouring the hot coffee over the big cubes of ice in the tall glasses is a favorite with rolled cress or tomato sandwich rounds. And a combination of lemon ice, orange juice and ginger ale is a gorgeous combination for a hot summer afternoon. Use of juice of six oranges with four bottles ginger ale and two quarts lemon ice.

Because Fourth of July is a fizzy day the beverage was fizzy ginger ale and cream.

Nancy has some other cooling drinks. Write to her, care of this paper, asking for her leaflet on "Tinkling Beverages." Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Copyright, 1931, Publishers Syndicate.)

WHAT'S IN FASHION?

Cool Glassware for Appetites

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

LUNCHEON SET
of colored glass

NEW YORK, July 4—Try this on the next hot day when the family doesn't want to eat. Set a crystal glass cup on a black glass saucer and place them beside a topaz glass plate.

Such a combination—or one of any of the many lovely new colors found in this summer's glassware—ought to make even corned beef and cabbage taste cool.

Sparkling glass is cool looking. Plain crystal color is the same color as ice. But green is almost as cold a color and is more decorative in itself. So that's why green is just about the most popular and most fashionable summer glassware color.

Combining Colors.

But combinations of colors are smarter than all one color when your table is set for a cool meal. Choosing among topaz, amethyst, amber, blue, rose and ruby—all good, fashionable glassware colors—you can make many in individual decorative schemes.

If you don't want an entire service of glass and if your china is gay colored in the smart summer manner, pick some one color from your china pattern and have your stemware match it.

Or combine with a plain glass luncheon set some crystal colored beverage glasses ringed with bright colored bands or modernistic black stripes.

New Mug Shapes.

There are dozens of attractive shapes that tempt you to drink more cooling beverages. Some stand flat on the table...some have round or square bases. Newest glasses are built like the baby's mug, with a handle on the side...but they're taller, of course.

Fashionable shapes of luncheon and bridge sets in glass vary from the plain round to the square, with octagonal and many-sided plates coming in between.

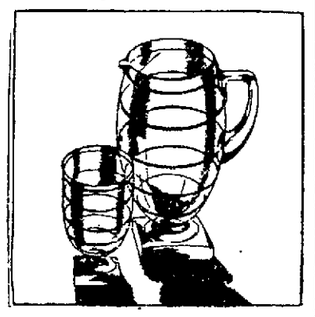

Service is usually for six in luncheon sets, including from 23 to 32 pieces. Bridge sets are made for four or eight, with from 15 to 23 pieces.

Kinds of Glass.

Plain glass with a design that looks like etching is a satisfactory type for these sets. It's neither too plain nor too decorative. Some sets are absolutely plain, and some of the most effective imitate the old hobnail glassware that was the fashion during the last century.

The beverage sets that are so helpful in entertaining on hot summer afternoons or evenings come in these same types of glass. A pitcher and six glasses are the usual set. Often they're fitted on a tray and sometimes glass sippers are included.

The pitcher usually follows the line of the glass. If the glass is tall

and slender, so is the pitcher. If the glass is round and fat the pitcher will be rotund, too.

Tops on Pitchers.

Many of the pitchers have tops, to be put on when pouring begins. They keep the fruit or ice from slopping over. A new kind has a "lip" that curves part way back over the top, allowing the liquid to pour freely but catching the ice and holding it back.

Sketched are two pitchers and their matching glasses...the one in the center in bubble glass, the other in clear crystal with colored rings.

LINCOLN STAR PATTERNS

Sheer frocks are so closely related to body lines today, that the modern woman cannot afford to be careless with the fit of her undergarments. Last year's slips and chemises will appear bulky under dresses which, although not actually tight, are nevertheless slightly moulded to the figure. Therefore it is wise to take stock of your lingerie now, and before fitting your new summer frocks, be sure you have the necessary intimate garments that are so dainty and fine when made at home. Just as cottons have taken a prominent place in the fashion world of dresses, so have they become popular for underthings. The outstanding fabrics for feminine lingerie are crepe de chine, rayon, batiste, indestructible voile, fine linen and, for slips, soft taffeta. Colors include white, black and all the delicious pastels. Unusually deep ecru lace is used for trimming.

Pattern 1125.

The lady admiring the fit of the undergarments on her friends is dressed in a model under which either the slip or chemise would be perfect. It is a charming, simple frock with becoming, scalloped collar and a low placed skirt flare joined in three large scallops. The absence of a belt, although you may wear one if you wish, adds height and slenderness to the figure. Sleeves are included with the pattern. Pattern 1125 is obtainable only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3⅛ yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1051.

The slip fits the body beautifully and flares well below the hips with just the right amount of fullness for chic. An invisible pleat at each side seam lends added freedom and grace. The pointed styling permits rather low neck both front and back but modestly covers the bust. Lace may be omitted at the hem. Pattern 1051 is obtainable only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2 3-8 yards of 36 inch fabric.

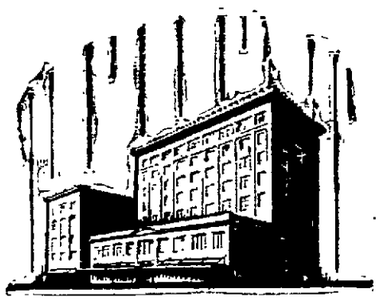

Pattern 1056.

Many women prefer a chemise, especially under heavier silk and woolen frocks. You'll enjoy this garment because it has ample fullness and ease for sitting as well as standing. Since the top of an undergarment so often shows above the neckline of the new dresses, it is nice to trim it a little more lavishly with lace. Often it will save the expense of a vestee. Pattern 1056 is obtainable only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 1¾ yards of 36 inch.

These models are very easy to make as each pattern comes to you with simple and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern ordered.

Send for our Catalog of Fashions. It features a wide assortment of delightful afternoon frocks, sport models, house dresses, lingerie, pajamas, clothes for the kiddies, and accessory patterns. This catalog is fifteen cents when ordered alone. Catalog and pattern together, twenty-five cents. Address all mail and orders to Lincoln Star Pattern Department, 243 West 17th St., New York City.

WASHINGTON'S FOURTH OF JULY ADDRESS.

Fifteen years after the Declaration of Independence was signed, the significance of that event was much less appreciated than it is now. Possibly, the colonies which had won independence and which had set up a government, which later was to become the outstanding democracy of the world, were too preoccupied with the immediate problems of the day to plan elaborate programs for the Fourth.

At Lancaster, Pa., on Independence day in 1791, however, the first American president and the Father of His Country, George Washington, delivered the only Fourth of July address which he gave during his term of office. Lancaster then was the largest inland city in the United States. Waiving his customary reluctance, Washington consented to visit Lancaster on the Fourth. Describing the incident in his diary, he writes: "I agreed to halt here this day and partake of the entertainment. In the forenoon, I walked about the town—at half past two o'clock I received, and answered an address from the corporation and the compliments of the clergy of different denominations—dined between 3 and 4 o'clock—drank tea with Mrs. Hand."

If Washington failed to attain oratorical heights on that glorious Fourth just one hundred forty years ago today, the good citizens of Lancaster supplied it with a formally prepared address, delivered to the president. It reads as follows:

"To George Washington, president of the United States:

"Sir: On behalf of the inhabitants of the borough of Lancaster, the members of the corporation beg leave to congratulate you on your arrival at this place. On this jovial occasion, they approach the first magistrate of the union with hearts impressed with no less grateful respect than their fellow citizens of the east and the south. With them, they have admired those talents, and that firm prudence in the field, which finally ensured success to the American arms. But at this time, reverence forbids the language which would naturally flow from the recapitulation of the events of the late glorious Revolution. The faithful page of history will record your illustrious acts for posterity. Yet we can not forebear to mention what we, in our day, have beheld and witnessed. We have seen you at the awful period, when the storm was bursting around us, and our fertile plains were deluged with the richest blood of America. Rising above adversity, and exerting all of the talents of the patriot and the hero, to save our country from threatened ruin; and when, by the will of Heaven, these exertions had restored peace and prosperity to the United States and the great object for which you drew the sword was accomplished, we have beheld you, adorned with every private social virtue, mingling with your fellow citizens...

"Long, very long, sir, may you enjoy the affections of your fellow citizens. We pray for the long continuance of your health and happiness and choicest blessings of Heaven on our beloved country—and on you—its father and its friend."

To this well deserved eulogy, Washington made a reply which is commended to the attention of present day orators for its brevity. His Fourth of July speech was exactly 118 words long, as follows:

"To the corporation and inhabitants of the Borough of Lancaster:

"Gentlemen: Your congratulations on my arrival in Lancaster are received with pleasure, and the flattering expressions of your esteem are replied with sincere regard.

"While I confess my gratitude for the distinguished estimation in which you are pleased to hold my public service, a sense of justice to my fellow citizens ascribes to other causes the peace and prosperity of our highly favored country. Her freedom and happiness are founded in her patriotic exertions, and will, I trust, be transmitted to distant ages through the same mediums of wisdom and virtue. With sincere wishes for your social, I offer an earnest prayer for your individual welfare."

There is in that the reminder that the price of representative government, with its institutions of individual liberty, is eternal vigilance. Wealth is always alert and quick to seize upon the opportunity to oppress those less strong and able to take care of themselves. Government exists primarily for the protection of the weak, who are unable to match brains or physical strength with those more fortunately endowed. It will require the vigilant citizen to make real the hope expressed by George Washington in the only public reference which he ever made to Independence day.

A NEWSPAPER FOR HER SONS.

One of the interesting revelations made in connection with the projected sale of The Washington Post is that the estranged wife of the owner and publisher, Mrs. E. B. McLean, wanted the property preserved for her two sons. It was a natural ambition for a mother, because it would have given her boys a newspaper in the nation's capital. Through ability and hard work, they might have made it an organ wielding a very large influence in national affairs.

The trend in recent years in the newspaper field no doubt sharpened her opposition to the projected sale. It is no longer possible to start a newspaper on a "shoe-string." It requires an exceedingly large investment and years of toil, generally unremunerative. Here was a going property, which, while it had not been on an earning basis for a short period, was nevertheless well-equipped, comfortably housed ,and with the advantage of having passed through the pioneering stage. Good management and more enlightened and intelligent news and editorial direction could very easily give it a much more commanding position than it now occupies.

For the time being, at least, Mrs. McLean has won her fight. The negotiations which were on foot for the transfer of the newspaper to a new ownership have been called off. In the event that the hopes of the mother are realized and the Post does come under the direction of the two sons, it will be interesting to watch what they do with it. A newspaper, strangely, can't be passed on as a family heirloom. There comes a time when the futility of throwing dollars into it gets tiresome. If the young McLeans are to find happiness and the success which they may covet, it will be necessary for them to put something of themselves into the newspaper.

NEWSPAPER EXTRAS.

Less than 35,000 people in a city of nearly a million piled into the magnificent new stadium in Cleveland Friday night to witness the championship battle between Max Schmeling and W. L. Stribling.

Financially the fight was one of the biggest "busts" in the history of the heavyweight prize ring.

It was not due to a lack of ballahooing that the business end of the promotion turned out so badly. The American people have turned thumbs down, it would appear, on paying high prices for the entertainment of this sort. The fight reached those who were interested through the channels of the air, with a national hookup for the broadcast. And yet in the face of that a Lincoln newspaper sent its "newsies" out into the residential sections of this community near the midnight hour to shout and cry "Extras." Circulation attained by those methods is of doubtful value. When there is anything worthy of an extra edition, this newspaper will issue a special edition.

THE STATE BANKING MIXUP.

It is a bad thing for the state of Nebraska and for the depositors in failed state banks that dissension has arisen between the governor and the receivers of these institutions, threatening to throw their affairs into confusion, delay the payment of dividends to depositors, and continue to involve the banking administration in political turmoil.

Without attempting to judge the merits of the present controversy, it appears that the major blame for allowing such a situation to develop rests upon the governor. Reasonable forethought and proper action on his part would have forestalled it.

If, as Mr. Bryan claims, the law makes his appointee in charge of the trade and commerce department the receiver for all failed banks, why has he waited six months before asserting the department's authority to take them over? Why did he agree with Mr. Bliss, former secretary of trade and commerce, to allow the latter to continue as receiver for 200 or more banks, after having bitterly denounced Bliss' administration during the previous campaign on the ground that it had been subservient to the banks and inimical to the interests of depositors?

The fact that Governor Bryan did make such an agreement with Mr. Bliss, who now defies his authority to interfere with the handling of the receiverships, raises the presumption that much of the talk the governors indulged in a year ago, when campaigning for the office he now holds, was merely political hokum. Surely, if he thought Bliss and the former banking administration were as bad as he had painted them, he would have been justified in going to any length for the removal of the former as soon as he took charge of the state government.

This could have been done by very simple procedure. The governor could have named his own attorney for the banking administration six months ago, instead of waiting till July 1, and the attorney could have immediately filed an application with the district court in each receivership asking that the name of Bryan's appointee as head of the trade and commerce department be substituted in each case for the one who previously held that post. The court, as a matter of course, would have done this. It is customary, where a change of administration occurs in the midst of pending litigation, to change the title of a case so that the new incumbent is made a party to it instead of the one he succeeded. Governor Bryan's name was thus substituted for ex-Governor Weaver's in several legal proceedings, some of which are now before the courts.

Governor Bryan will probably say that he was too busy with his legislative program and other important business of the state to look after the banking situation at the outset. If his time was so occupied to the exclusion of banking matters, it is largely his own fault. He has insisted on being the whole thing in the state government, demanding that his subordinates in all the different departments refer their problems to him and do nothing without his personal approval. As a result, the public business has become stagnated in a number of departments because no man is big enough to look after it all.

Other governors relied upon the executive assistants whom they appointed to take some of the executive responsibility, as the constitution and laws intended they should. The Bryan idea seems to be a one-man government to the nth degree; yet it is notorious that he takes more time to consider and discuss official matters, before acting upon them, than almost anybody else who ever filled the gubernatorial station. The results can hardly be taken as proof that his method of handling the public business is the best one.

Mr. Bryan may be entirely right in his quarrel with Mr. Bliss and the other receivers, as to who has the lawful right to be in custody of and administer failed banks. The trouble is that it has taken him such a long time to assert his own official prerogative, and in the meantime banking affairs have been plunged into a maelstrom of political strife and legal uncertainty which are bound to react unfavorably upon the interests of the depositors.

Everyday Questions

Answered By

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

(Copyright 1930, New York Tribune.)

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by The Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

QUESTION.

I am a young man and a high school graduate. I come from a respectable family. I have picked up common street talk on sex, and have craved for experience. I don't know how I have ever done such a thing but I have. I would probably not be writing this letter had I not acquired a disease from that terrible lapse. Here is my trouble: I am liked by every one I know and no one would think such a thing of me.. My people love me dearly and it would break their hearts if they knew. My dad works day and night in order to let me attend college. So how could I tell anyone? How could I confide in anyone? My people would just about die of shame. Please tell me what to do. Should I leave home?

ANSWER.

First, go immediately to your family doctor and tell him all the facts. You may unintentionally be even now a source of contagion in your house to those you love best. Therefore, act promptly. Next, take your father into your complete confidence, for he will stand by your side as will no other except your mother. While they may be heartbroken they will never forsake you. With their encouragement and supervision (and you will need both), you can co-operate with your physician far better than otherwise. In fact, I seriously doubt whether you have really concealed your anxiety from your mother's eyes, even though she may not suspect its cause. Next, keep your mind hopeful.

Then get busy and crowd out the stifling depression now gripping you. The best way to do that is to have plenty of mental occupation. Map out your days and evenings into hours for work and recreation and do not allow pessimistic feelings to get the upper hand.

What you now have to do is to atone for an error and the best atonement you can make is a reconstructed life. This will be impossible if remorse and horror are the predominant occupants of your mind.

Of one thing I am certain, that when in later years you meet with those so-called "leaders" who so glibly defend and thereby encourage sex irregularities, you will at least be in a position to appraise from experience the chatter of these fools for exactly what it is worth in human agony and tears.

QUESTION.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.

I am sure the world is about to come to an end, and we shall have to face it whether we believe the word of the Lord or not. Why don't you realize what is hanging over us, for all the signs point to the wind-up of this Dispensation!

ANSWER.

Your outlook is blurred by disillusionment and despair. Otherwise, why should you involve this burdened earth in wholesale collapse, and then try to prove your assumption by quoting isolated texts of Scripture? Let us examine a few of the signs of the times.

India is being slowly prepared to take her place among the natoins. China, beset with countless baffling problems, nevertheless reveals the fathomless depths of her vigar and her keen expectation of a better future. Russia has entered upon an experiment which commands the attention of all capitalists and industrialists. Turkey, after centuries of ruthless despotism, is leading the Moslem world toward a new destiny.

The European nations have contracted themselves by treaties to avoid war, and any single power which proposes it will have to encounter these public covenants. Science has pushed man's control over Nature to still wider boundaries. The terrors of disease and death are being reduced. There is much poverty, but never before was so much relief available.

Forgive me if I fill your extensive picture of the ills and wrongs of modern life (which I have not quoted from your lengthy letter) with some aspects you have omitted. There is very much to regret in the movements mentioned, yet there is even more to praise. On any judgment, they evidence life, not death, and their pangs are those of rebirth, and not of dissolution. Why not cultivate a more informed, robust, and adventurous faith? If you cannot say with Browning that—

"God's in His Heaven,

at least you can refuse to consign its countless millions to a desperate fate by misusing Holy Scripture.

QUESTION.

DAYTON, O.

I accept Jesus as a Teacher, none better, but what about His doctrine of the incarnation? It bothers me considerably. I should be grateful for any light you can throw on it.

ANSWER.

Suppose you consider its backgrounds. Half the world in which Jesus lived insisted on separating the spiritual from the material. Religion to the Oriental meant a withdrawal from everything earthly. The ascetic was the saint, the mendicant a hero. To be disturbed by man's cruelty to man, or to protest against the injustice which made millions mourn, impaired the soul's heavenward progress. The body was but a charnel house, and even its daily necessities a defilement of the spirit.

In the west represented by Greece and Rome opposite beliefs prevailed. To live conformably to nature, to cultivate beauty of form, to devise laws for personal and social government and to observe the conventionalities were the primary duties of man. The Greek heeded his philosophers and the Roman his political guides. As for religion, to them it was largely a matter of words too often meaningless.

Thus were east and west committed to their diverse doctrines. The one said: "Despite the visible and the present and fix your energies on the invisible and the future." The other: "Live for the present as sanely as you can, and let the future, if there be any, take care of itself."

Jesus entered human life at this crisis in its thinking and practice to insist on its unity as against its separation. Faith an works were one. The love of God was demonstrated in the love of man. Earth could and must be a part of heaven. Here and now in the time element which was but a breathing space of eternity God's Kingdom was to be established. Man's estate could only be rightly ordered if he first sought that Kingdom. The adoration of the recluse was blended with the service of the humanitarian.

It was the Christian's task to fashion everything he saw after the Divine pattern Jesus gave in Himself. For this purpose He was manifested in our flesh as the "Only Begotten Son" and the "Word Incarnate." Nothing He touched could be unclean. Everything could be made acceptable to God by His indwelling spirit. This is the basic reality of the Incarnation.

EXIT

BY HAROLD BELL WRIGHT.

SYNOPSIS: Tony Latour helps Harriet Noel plan the theatrical career of her four-year-old son, Pierre, abandoned by her husband, Roy Donovan. In the boy Tony sees the same genius that had caused his mother to reject his marriage proposal and seek stage honors. Back in Orchard Hill, Pierre's sensitive nature is buffeted by the domineering Bruce, the stepson Donovan had placed in Harriet's charge. Harriet dies, and after Bruce weds Ann Bevis, Pierre, now a soda "jerk," goes to live with them. Pierre, about to leave for theatrical school, refuses Bruce's plea that he invest in a gold mine the money left by his mother. Tony tells Ann that a play he had read to the boy had probably caused his firmness.

Antonio Latour—An old actor.
Martin Bevis—Ann's father—bookkeeper in the bank.

Chapter 14
OLD TONY'S PLAY

Old Tony put on his spectacles and, clearing his throat, read the title from the manuscript: "'Exit'—a play in three acts, written for Pierre Donovan by Antonio Latour." He added reverently, "I have inscribed it to the memory of Pierre's mother, Harriet Neel, a great actress who endowed her son with her own artist soul."

"How splendid," cried Ann. "And is Pierre in the play?"

"Oh, yes; it is all about Pierre."

"Of course. And who else?"

"You, your father, Bruce, myself and a lot of other people."

"Really? Am I in your play?"

"You are in the play because you are a most important factor in Pierre's life and character."

"I—I don't think I understand," faltered Ann.

"Why, you see, Ann, a person's life and character are the same thing. A man lives what he is—he is what he lives. And character—that which a person really is—is the result of certain combinations of what I call life forces. Love, hate, ambition, avarice, idealism, materialism, selfishness, generosity—all the elements which combine in different proportions to form different characters are the elements or forces of which life is made."

"Yes, of course," agreed Ann, "and the different combinations of those life forces make the difference in people."

"Exactly," cried the old actor. "There are as many different combinations of these life forces as there are different characters. The forces are the same—the patterns they make are different, that is all. And life and plays, my dear, are made of exactly the same stuff. And so, Ann, I have made my play, 'Exit,' which I wrote for our Pierre out of the very same life forces which have entered into the making of Pierre himself. Of course you understand that in my play I have combined these forces so that the pattern is different from what we hope the pattern of Pierre's actual life experience will be. I have made the pattern of my play, 'Exit,' as Pierre's experiences might be if he yielded to Bruce and failed to be true to himself."

"Who else is in the play?"

The old actor read from his manuscript:

CAST OF CHARACTERS

Harriet Noel—
Pierre Donovan's mother
Ann Carey—A young housewife
Antonio Latour—An ol dactor
Martin Bevis — Ann's father—book-keeper in the bank
Bruce Carey—Ann's husband—clerk in the bank
PIERRE DONOVAN—
A soda fountain clerk—a great actor
Edward Dayton—President of the bank
Edward Wilson—Teller in the bank
Jack Bolton—Sheriff of Orchard County
George Scott—Deputy
Colorado Bill—A promoter of a Nevada gold mine
Jimmie Harrigan—An old desert prospector
Sheriff—Red Butte, Nevada
Deputies and others

"But, Father Tony, how can Pierre's mother be in your play?"

Old Tony bowed his head and fumbled blindly over his manuscript. "Pierre's mother, Ann, is standing in the wings."

"Oh," said Ann softly. Then she stole behind the old gentleman's chair, and, putting her arms about his neck, kissed his silvery white hair.

The old actor raised his head with a grateful smile and read from his manuscript: "Act one, scene one: The living room of a comfortable but unpretentious small-town home. There is a dining table not far from an open door through which the kitchen and the kitchen stove can be seen. An archway leads to the front hall and the foot of the stairs. Another door opens on a bedroom. Against the wall is an old-fashioned writing desk with paper and envelopes."

"Why, Father Tony!" Ann exclaimed, looking about the room as if comparing the description with the scene itself, "why, that is our own living room right here!"

Old Tony, without looking up from his manuscript, continued reading: "Time midsummer—late afternoon."

"Oh, but it's not late," Ann interrupted quickly, "it is only a quarter of two."

Old Tony smiled. "It is late in the play, Ann. You are getting supper."

"But I'm not — I'm ironing Pierre's things."

The old actor laughed. "In the play you are getting supper."

Ann returned doubtfully, "Oh in the play—I see." She placed the garments on the table and, carrying the ironing board into the kitchen, began doing things about the stove as if to prepare a meal.

Tony watched her as a director might watch a bit of stage business. Then, referring to his manuscript, he continued: "Pierre is leaving tomorrow morning for New York to attend the American Academy of Dramatic Art."

Ann, standing in the kitchen doorway, cried, "But, Father Tony, Pierre is leaving for New York this afternoon—not tomorrow morning—on the train that goes at 5:53."

The old actor explained with smiling patience; "In the play, Ann, Pierre is leaving Orchard Hill on the 6:15 tomorrow morning."

Suddenly it was all clear to Ann, and she cried, "Oh-h-h, of course! Pierre really is leaving this afternoon, but in the play he is leaving tomorrow morning. What comes next?"

The old actor consulted his manuscript: "Pierre is upstairs packing his trunk."

"Oh, is Pierre home?" exclaimed Ann. "When did he come in? He said he would be gone all the afternoon."

"No, Ann," the old actor laughed. "Pierre has not come home yet. But in the play, dear, Pierre is upstairs packing his trunk."

Ann thought this over. Then she took the garments she had been ironing from the table and, carrying them into the hall, put them on the lower step of the stairs. For a moment she stood looking up to the floor above wonderingly, then, facing toward Old Tony, she said, "You say that, in your play, Pierre is upstairs?"

"Yes."

She turned again slowly, doubtfully and called up the stairway: "Pierre—oh—Pierre—here are your things."

Pierre's voice answered from upstairs, "All right, Ann, thank you."

Tony read from the manuscript: "It would be shameful, Ann, if your husband should use Pierre's school money in the Nevada gold mining scheme as he is trying to persuade Pierre to let him do."

"But, Father Tony, you need not fear that Pierre will let Bruce have his school money."

Tony, still reading, returned, "I am not so sure, Ann. Pierre would do anything for you."

"For me?"

Tony turned a page of the manuscript and read: "I don't think you quite realize how much Pierre cares for you, Ann."

"And I am sure nobody realizes how much I love Pierre—I mean, how we all love him."

Old Tony read: "Enter Martin Bevis, Ann's father."

As if to punctuate the old actor's words, the front door slammed shut. Old Tony looked up from his manuscript; Ann turned and they were both gazing expectantly toward the hall as Martin Bevis appeared in the archway.

"Hello, Tony," said Martin rudely. "Come to see that nobody bites your wonderful Pierre before he's safe away from us, I suppose?"

"Father!" Ann protested.

Martin, paying no attention to his daughter's cry, continued addressing Tony. "You mark my word, the day will come when you will be mighty sorry for the way you've encouraged that fool boy of Harriet Noel's in his crazy ideas about being an actor. Look at yourself! If the poor boy's mother had good sense she'd never named you executor of her will and guardian of her boy. But Harriet Noel—"

When Martin spoke the name of Pierre's mother, Old Tony looked up from his manuscript with a quick indignant motion of his head. Then he rose to his feet and with theatrical gesture and voice cried, "Stop!"

Martin, silenced by the old actor's voice and manner, stood staring at him. Ann, too, was speechless.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Digger the Badger at Work

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

No matter what the job may be
Expertly done 'tis good to see.
—Old Mother West Wind.

It was several days before Digger the Badger was seen again. Then one morning just as the two young Prairiedogs were getting ready to go out for breakfast Popup caught sight of a silvery-gray coat some distance away.

"There is Digger the Badger, that fellow I saw the other day," whispered Popup to Peekaboo.

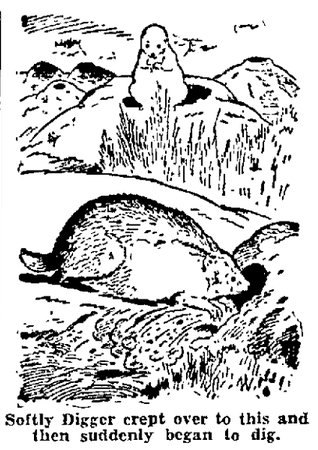

Peekaboo shivered a bit, for they had heard dreadful stories of the doings of Digger, but she tried to sit a little straighter that she could see better, for she was full of curiosity. By this time Digger had been seen by others, and the alarm given. There was excited barking and whistling on all sides.

Digger paid no attention to the excitement his appearance had caused. He trotted along intent on his own business, and it was soon plain to see that he would pass very near the house of Popup and Peekaboo. They were frightened and they were curious. It was a question of which was the greater, fear or curiosity. Peekaboo went into the house, but almost at once poked her head out again.

When he was right opposite their house Digger turned and looked up at them, and there was something about that sharp black-and-white face that caused Peekaboo to drop out of sight and Popup to hastily dive int othe house. Digger grinned.

"Two nice young Prairie-dogs," he muttered. "That house has been deserted, so they must have moved in recently. Probably they have just started out for themselves in the Great World. I have an idea that house goes down very deep, and to dig them out would mean a lot of work not worth while for only two. If it were a new house just started, I might be tempted to dig them out. As it is, I think I'll lok for some Squirrels or Gophers."

So Digger kept on past the house and then turned away from the old town. By this time curiosity was too much for Popup, and true to his name he had popped his head out of his doorway, again to watch Digger. Seeing that the latter was paying no attention to him, Popup came out and sat up. Not far away was a fresh low mound of earth. It was the work of a Pocket Gopher. All about in the grass was similar little mounds, for Pocket Gophers are busy folk, and like Miner the Mole, work under ground just a little way below the surface. Every now and then they make an opening to the surface and out of this push the earth from their tunnel, closing the opening when the earth is out.

Softly Digger crept over to this and then suddenly began to dig.

Beside this mound Digger paused. He seemed to be undecided whether or not to dig this open. Then, just a little way off he saw black earth being pushed out from beneath. He knew a Gopher was at work there clearing his tunnel. Softly Digger crept over to this, and then suddenly he began to dig. Popup had always thought himself a good digger, but as he watched he decided that he didn't know much about digging. Here was an expert digger at work. The earth flew into the air at such a rate that Popup couldn't even see Digger. In what seemed like no time at all, he had disappeared. Two or three minutes later he reappeared and in his mouth was a limp form. It was the Gopher.

While Popup still watched, Digger suddenly dropped the Gopher and began to dig again. Once more the earth flew, and when Digger reappeared he had a Ground Squirrel. This he ate, and then picked up the Gopher and started for home.

"No wonder they call that fellow Digger," said Popup to Peekaboo, who had joined him. "I think I would rather trust to my legs than to a hole in the ground if he was after me. I didn't suppose that anyone in all the Great World could dig like that. I certainly am glad that this house of ours goes way down deep. My, my, my, such digging! I wouldn't have believed it possible had I not seen it with my own eyes."

DIABETIC SUMMER CAMP FOR CHILDREN DESCRIBED

An interesting experiment has been carried on for several years at Ore Lake, near Detroit—a summer camp for diabetic children.

Dr. Clendening

Diabetes is a much more severe disease in children than in older people. Its successful treatment requires careful medical supervision and strict dietary control. The life-prolonging qualities of insulin are more evident in children than any other group of diabetics.

Obviously children being less responsible, these diabetic children need to be watched very carefully. They are cut off from the pleasures of going to a summer camp with other children. It would be dangerous to allow a diabetic child to partake of the general diet at a summer camp and undertake the activities of other children without having a doctor's watchful eye upon them.

With this idea the camp in Michigan was organized. There are three kinds of special supervision not found in other camps. First, a physician and nurse are on duty—in fact, one physician and two nurses for about every 25 patients. Then a special dietitian. And thirdly, special recreation supervisors.

The cafeteria style of serving food is used. The food is weighed for each little patient and individualization in diets is possible by the use of trained dietetic helpers. Three groups of children, getting three general classes of diet, are fed at separate tables.

Many arrangements have to be set up in such a camp. A laboratory is equipped. An emergency treatment for coma and other accidents is made ready. The recreation workers carry dextrose wafers around with them all the time to treat the condition of low blood sugar (hypoglycaemia) which so frequently arises when insulin is given. Insulin is administered to the patients in constantly varying doses to meet their changing needs.

The benefits from such an organization are many. First, the child gets a vacation from home and the parents get a vacation also. A diabetic child must be watched and it is inevitable that such watching may turn into nagging and the condition get on the nerves both of the child and its home guardians.

The psychological effect on the child of seeing all its companions in the same predicament as itself is splendid. The installation of proper knowledge of dieting and exercise and insulin administration can be carried out better in a large group than individually. An "S. T. Y. D. club" (Stick to Your Diet club) is formed and the members are taught and helped to earn enough money to pay their way through camp the next year. Thus the ideals and methods of treatment learned in camp are carried over through the year.

JULY TH E FOURTH.

My country, O my country, another year has gone
Since first Thy radiant banner the sunlight fell upon!
And down the distant ages brave men have died for you
For brotherhood and freedom, and still there's work to do.

The dreams of men have followed thy banner down the years
With every generation the need for faith appears.
As higher rise thy children the wider grows the view;
The more we gain in vision, the more we find to do.

God grant us strength and courage to build the better way
To see the new tomorrow beyond the present day
To sacrifice the pleasures our little moment brings
That those who follow after may know the larger things.

My country, O my country, for us have brave men died,
That we might live in freedom they put their joys aside.
And may our generation as true and stalwart be
In building for tomorrow we cannot live to see.

Here and There

Eye and Ear in Education.

(New York Times)

A thoroughgoing study is to be made of the value of the radio in education. The personnel of the committee undertaking it, and assured financial support, promise a result that will undoubtedly have great influence in determining how and to what extent this agency may be used in the school. In the new methods of education, emphasis is placed on activity rather than receptivity—on the doing by the child rather than on the instruction by the teacher. The radio cannot be so helpful in that way as the guiding voice of the teacher near at hand, who adapts advice to the individual need of the pupil. Neither the printed word nor that spoken at a distance will ever displace the teacher.

Nor can the ear say to the eye, "I have no need of thee." The printed word will ever be basic in education. But the far-spoken words of wise men and women are valuable not only for the information with which they supplement the teacher's store, and even the printed word, but also for the stimulus of their own achievement. Thousands, even millions, of pupils may take part, through hearing, in contemporary events that become the substance of history. It is a saying as old as Herodotus that the ear is a less trustworthy witness than the eye; and as old as Horace that what the ear communicates to the mind less impresses it than that which is seen "by the unmistakable eyes." But the ear has from antiquity been the road to the heart. And while the voice at a distance has not the power to store, except by the very miracle of its reach, it is as a "sounding alchemy" that has the power to fuse a multitude of minds.

There are, as stated, the three problems: first, to develop sound programs of educational value; second, to broadcast them, a process so well developed that the fall of a pin may be heard across the continents; and third, to measure the effectiveness of the instruction—which is most difficult of all. The mere receptivity by the pupils may be estimated with some degree of accuracy. But who can know what single word may light as with an undying fire, here and there, the minds of pupil hearers and make them luminant citizens? Education is entering upon a new chapter in its history. It is having more and more to do with the present and the universal. It is concerned with the best that anywhere comes to be around the globe.

America Remains Inviting.

(Kansas City Times)

The predicament of the Russian student at a Cleveland institution, who feared he would be returned to his native country and to a long-standing sentence of death against him there, is not so serious as at first was indicated. It is now explained by department of labor officials that aliens are not deported to Russia because of the absence of official relations between the American government and Moscow.

America has its faults. But there are plenty of aliens who find in this country a freedom which is denied them under radical governments at home.

Americanism: Making no official effort to train youth because that is "Bolshevism;" building more and more prisons for untrained youth.

Herr Maxie Still Rules In 'Kingdom of Biff'

Referee Halts Fight In 15th Round; Gives Decision to German

BY EDWARD J. NEIL.

CLEVELAND, O., July 4—(AP)—The nation's proudest holiday, Independence Day, found a black-browed, smiling young German perched high on the heavyweight throne that has come to be a traditional American possession, acclaimed on all sides for the first time as the true ruler of the kingdom of biff.

Skeptics Cease to Doubt.

Many of the faithful who saw Max Schmeling win his crown from Jack Sharkey last June on a foul while reclining in a New York ring, were none too sure of the even-tempered foreigner's fighting ability. But those of the clan who peered down from the vast reaches of the magnificent new Cleveland municipal stadium last night will never doubt again.

Schmeling took one of America's finest heavyweights, Young Bill Stribling, from Macon, Ga., and in 15 rounds of his first title defense hacked and hammered and hewed the handsome southerner into a bleeding, stumbling, punch-soaked caricature of the trim and perfect young athlete who answered the opening gong.

Lets Loose Final Blast.

And about half a minute before the end of the fifteenth round, when it seemed the Georgian would stagger through to the finish and evade a knockout, Schmeling turned loose his final blast. Fourteen seconds before the final bell would have sounded, Referee George Blake, from Los Angeles, was forced to halt the hopeless struggle and award Schmeling the victory o- a technical knockout.

It was a bitter end, for Stribling, to a gallant, courageous stand, but in one sense it was as much vindication for him as the stunning victory was for the German. Just as the faithful and the critics during the past year have doubted Schmeling's fighting ability, so has Stribling's courage at times been maligned.

Stribling Proves His Courage.

But last night, if he got nowhere in particular with his fighting, at least he did turn in a masterpiece of bravery and dogged courage under a blistering, cutting fire that probably would have annihilated any heavyweight campaigning today.

For the first three rounds, Stribling was at his best, a tall, lean greyhound of a boxer, fast, tricky and accurate, dazzling puncher. The stolid German marched into him, half-crouching, weaving a little, and Stribling nailed the champion with every punch in the book. He tossed Schmeling around in the clinches, kept him off balance, and peppered him with rights until the Teuton's eye began to swell and the Stribling fanciers sat back in anticipation of a pleasant, interesting evening.

Max Never Faltered.

Schmeling smiled and took his punishment, never faltering, never changing his battle plan a mite, crowding forward, punching short and hard with jolting smashes to the body, curling hooks to the head. Stribling let him have the left, drilled him with the right, and still he came on.

Stribling started to falter in the fourth as Schmeling swept on like a rising tide beating against a shore. A short hook to the face brought blood from Stribling's nose. He wavered. And from that point on, with the exception of one desperate, flailing rally that carried the eighth round for him, Stribling slipped back. His right eye lid was cut in the seventh, his left in the tenth and he barely made his corner erect as the gong ended that round.

Georgian Badly Battered.

His lips were smashed, his nose cut and his blood-smeared face was a gory mask. Grimly he took his beating as the German increasing his pace as the battle wore on, hammered him about the body or drummed on the battered features. But badly as Stribling was hurt, the dramatic ending in the fifteenth round came as a surprise.

Schmeling caught the Georgian with a short left hook and right cross to the chin with the fight only seconds to go and down went Stribling in a heap in his own corner. He sprawled on the canvas almost under the lower rope and he barely reached his feet at the count of nine. Schmeling tore into him, halted for a second as he sensed the gallant southerner's desperate plight and looked pleadingly at Referee Blake. Instantly the Pacific coast official stepped between them and lifted Schmeling's hand in token of victory.

"Flop" at Box Office.

While the battle was a fighting sucess, it was anything but a moneymaker for Madison Square Garden of Ohio, promoters of the affair. There were scarcely 35,000 spectators in the huge amphitheater on the Lake Erie shore that was built to hold 110,000. The gross receipts were estimated at $325,000, and if a recheck does not boost that figure the Garden probably will stand a loss of between $50,000 and $80,000.

The corporation, with Schmeling now an acredited champion, has an opportunity to wipe out that deficit this fall with a match between Schmeling and Primo Carnera, both of whom are under contract for the bout. The contest may be staged here, in the same stadium, Sept. 17.

Good Golf.

BY CHESTER HORTON, "Golf's Greatest Teacher."

I have many times discussed the value of keeping your right leg in the action of resistance to the swinging action, and failure on this point also leads to a good many varieties of hooked shots. A wobbly right leg usually means the knee will break downward in the forward swing. It also permits body motion and general loss of balance. When one is off his balance while swinging he always tries to recover it, and this causes you to find yourself standing on your right foot at the finish of the swing. In such action naturally there has been no follow-through. The action of the club, in this restriction swinging action, has naturally been toward the left of the direction line. Hooking results. The ball also can get the habit of going to the left without curving. This might be due to gripping too rigidly with the left, which then offers too much resistance to the right hand, causing the clubhead to go through forward of the hands. The general cure is to keep your balance, take your time, swing smoothly and let the clubhead do it.

TUNNEY TELLS OF "STRIB'S" DEFEAT

Gene Analyzes Fight and Figures Georgian Was Insomnia Victim.

BY EDWARD J. NEIL.

CLEVELAND, July 3—(AP)—Said Gene Tunney, as he sat at the ringside, his floppy panama hat nestling down almost to his ears, his eyes on a couple of heavyweights fighting for a championship that used to be his:

"Of course I'll write a piece for the papers. I'd like to find out how it feels to be an author. And I'll do it all myself."

So the fight went on, and everyone was very busy, and finally Max Schmeling tumbled Young Stribling into the resin dust. The budding young journalist looked on with wise eyes. This was going to be a cinch.

Up Comes a Problem.

Then up comes the kind of a problem that is liable to pop out in even the best of the journalistic families. The special train bearing the Associated Press' new author was leaving in 10 minutes. No time to sit down and think. No time to gather paper with a crowd around and carefully put together glowing words and living phrases. What to do? What to do?

Well, the new reporter had an appointment with the old reporter at a club on the outskirts of the city and there the masterpece was to be unveiled before critical eyes. Tunney remembered that. If he couldn't be there in person, because he was going to be on a train for New York in 10 minutes, then his story would be there. The new member of the staff raced for a telephone.

Told It to a Waiter.

"Hello. Hello," he barked, "is there anyone there who can take dictation?"

"Was ist das?" answered a guttural German voice.

"I said is there anyone there can take dictation? Notes. Take a story."

"Ya" came the voice back. "You vish to order someting, ya?"

It ended finally with the German waiter in the club getting out a pencil and the back of a couple of envelopes and taking down in German long hand the following piece for the papers. Amid much grunting and gesticulating, the waiter finally deciphered it when he was cornered. He swears that it went like this:

BY GENE TUNNEY.
Former Heavyweight Champion.

"Stribling lost his fight, I think, because of nervousness. He looked to me as though he hadn't slept for three days before he went into the ring. His nervousness, evidently, had caused insomnia.

"He was obviously nervous throughout the fight, and, in addition, he seemed tired even in the first round. He landed only half his blows cleanly, considering the contest from start to finish.

"Max should have won in the early part of the fight, it seemed to me as I watched it. But he did not lead more than five good blows throughout a rather slow contest.

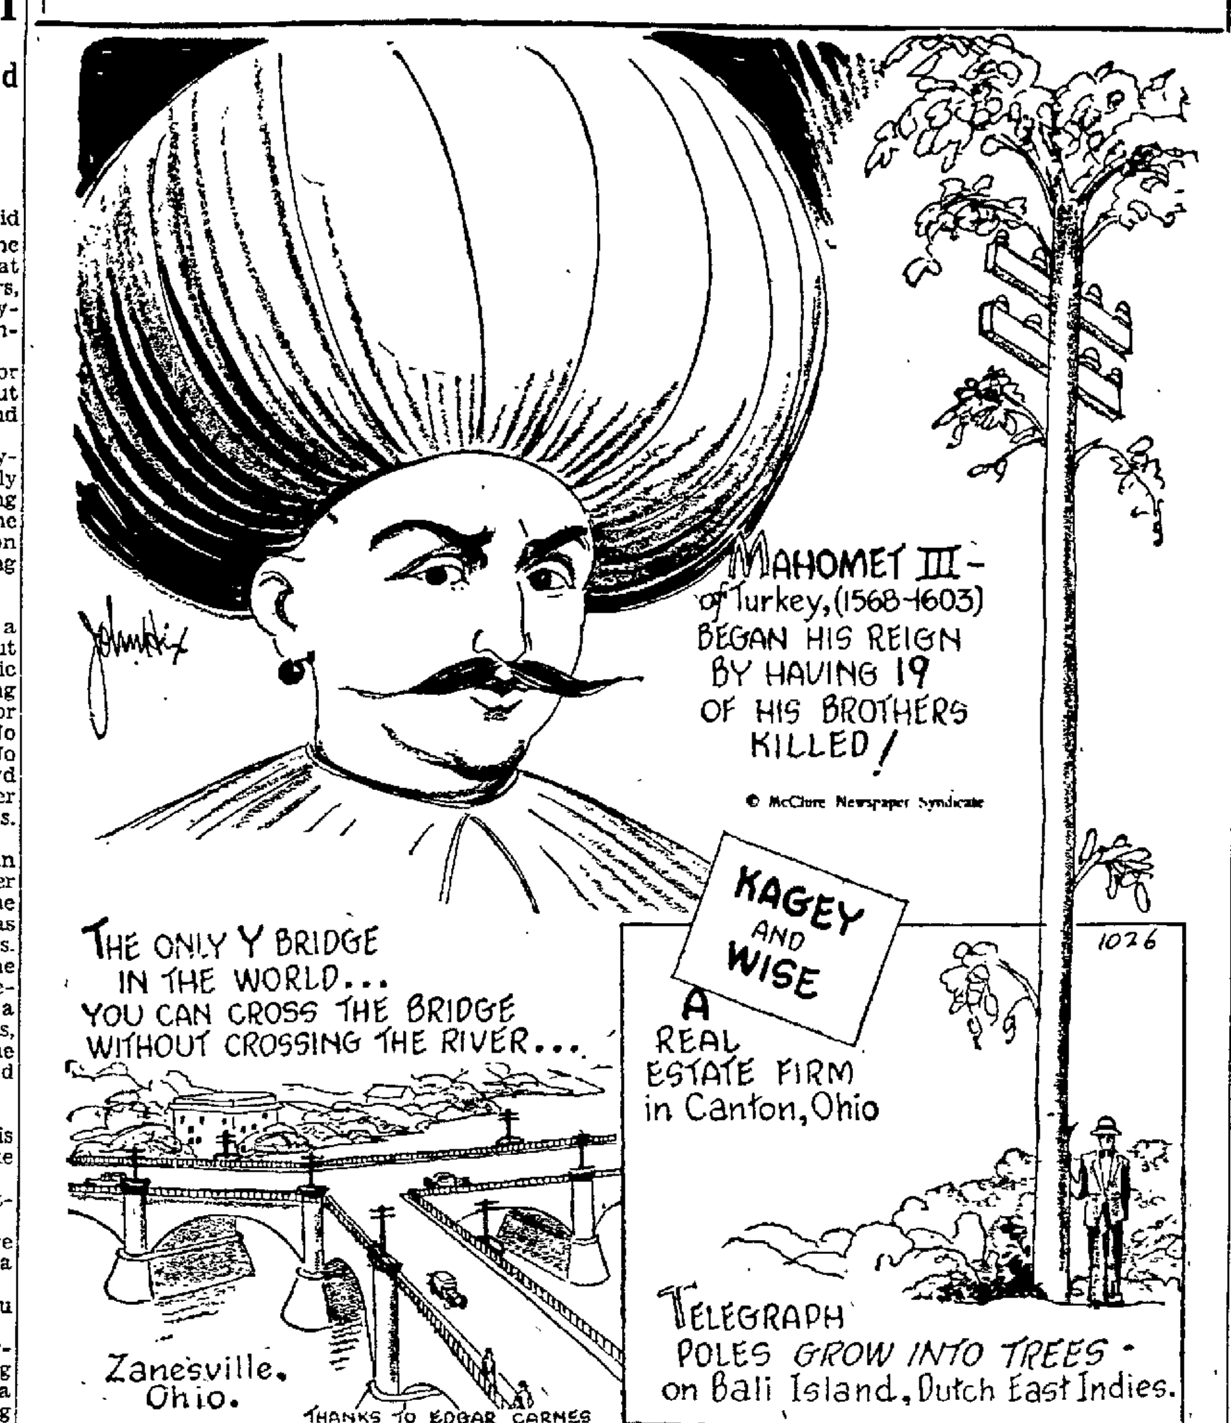

Wrecked Nerves Took Toll.

"The condition of Stribling's nerves became apparent in the first few rounds, for I could see a fluttering in the muscles of his abdomen, always an indication of overwrought nerves.

"Stribling knew in the early rounds, I think, that he was going to be beaten. There was never much doubt as to the result."

Gene Tunney, member of the Associated Press sports staff for a night, finally got his piece in. But the next time he has been told to call the city editor and to quit doing his stuff in foreign languages.

The island of Baili, Dutch East Indies, has such fertile soil that metal telephone poles are being substituted for wooden ones, to keep them from sprouting and spreading into trees. Volcanic conditions are the cause of this rich earth, for valuable fertilizing chemicals are contained in the ashes and mud tossed up during eruptions. Rains wash these chemicals over the sloping lands, constantly renewing the soil, and enabling Bali natives to raise three crops a year with scarcely any labor.

Junior Cinder Stars Shatter Ten Records On Meet's First Day

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

A crack field of athletes and lightning fast cinders combined to make history at the University of Nebraska Memorial stadium Friday afternoon as the forty-third annual national A. A. U. championships got under way.

Friday was junior day and the youngsters celebrated by smashing 10 of 19 junior records, some of the performances being of such exceptional junior caliber as to give promise of standing a number of years.

Los Angeles Takes Plum.

The fact that Los Angeles A. C. ended the reign of the Olympic club of San Francisco in the junior team championship, after a nip-and-tuck argument, was lost in the shuffle as the junior athletes continued to re-write the record book, the business of busting records starting early in the afternoon and continuing until late in the day.

Jack Burnett, University of Mississippi freshman, grabbed individual honors for the opening day by slamming the sprints and hanging up new junior meet records in each event.

Burnett Beats Glass.

Young Burnett nipped Glass, Oklahoma Aggie sprinter and Missouri Valley conference champion, in the century final to win the event in 9 6-10 seconds. The mark equalled his preliminary performance which had sliced one-tenth second off the old record.

Returning to the cinders an hour later, the "Sippi" speedster knocked one-fifth second off the furlong record when he leaped to the tape inches in front of "Smokey Joe" Mendel of Yankton college to win in 21 3-10 seconds.

While Burnett rolled up the high individual point total of the afternoon, it was a Nebraska boy that provided the fireworks for the Friday show.

Kearney Lad Wins Mile.

Frank Lydic of Kearney State Teachers college cut loose with a wild sprint in the last quarter-mile to come out of the pack and win the mile in 4 minutes 19 8-10 seconds, nearly two seconds under the junior record.

In winning the mile, Lydic bested a field of classy performers, including Glen Dawson, Big Six conference champion and record-holder; Frank Nordell, New York A. C. runner, and Cliff Halstead of Southern California, Northwest Pacific Coast conference champion. The latter led for nearly three laps, but wilted during the final round.

Hurdle Records Lowered.

The hurdle marks also took considerable punishment. Amsden Oliver, Dayton, O., negro timber topper who established a world interscholastic low hurdle record in the Stagg interscholastic meet a few weeks ago, ran the lows in beautiful style Friday to coast in with a mark of 23 8-10 seconds, a full six-tenths of a second under the junior record.

Eugene Beatty, colored athlete from Michigan Normal, Penn relay 440-yard hurdle winner, won his favorite event in 53 5-10 seconds, more than a second under the junior record, but was denied a record performance because he tipped over one of the barriers. Art Holman of the Olympic club, however, previously had brought in a new mark when he was clocked in 54 5-10 seconds, as he won the second heat of the preliminaries.

Denverite Wins a Thriller.

Close finishes of the distance runs were provided by the steeplechase and the 880-yard run. Forest Harvey of the Denver A. C. came up with a thrilling finish over the water jump and last hurdle to beat Cliff Watson of Indiana with a pitch to the tape in the record time of 10 minutes 33 seconds. Levi Myers of Utah Aggies was inches ahead of Charley Sansone, Los Angeles A. C., in the half-mile.

While the cinder-burners were having their fun with the record-book, the field event men also were making merry. Don Zimmerman of Tulane, Southern intercollegiate champion, cleared 13 feet 5 7-8 inches for a new pole vault record, and John Anderson of the Century A. C., hurled the discus 145 feet 11 inches for another record mark.

New Shot Put Mark.

Manley Edwards, Olympic club husky, got the 16-pound shot out 48 feet 1 1-8 inches to add over half a foot to a record which had stood for 22 years. George Theorodotos, Pacific coast schoolboy, also bettered the previous mark.

John Brooks, University of Chicago freshman, leaped 24 feet 11 inches to add nearly eight inches to the record hung up by the famous DeHart Hubbard in 1922.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Jess Mortensen, Los Angeles athlete who a week ago hung up a new record for the decathlon performance over the two-day period, was setting the pace for the national all-around field Saturday morning. Mortensen piled up a 50 point lead during the five events held at Memorial stadium Friday afternoon.

Wilson "Buster" Charles, whose father brought Carlisle colors to victory a quarter of a century ago, was riding in second place when the morning competition started, the defending champion having gathered in 4,194.05 points for Friday work.

Berlinger In Third Place.

Trailing in third position was Barney Berlinger, University of Pennsylvania athlete, with 4,012.69 points. Barney failed to win a first place Friday but hoped to stage a comeback Saturday in the pole vault, javelin and discus which are among his strong events.

In taking the lead Friday, Mortensen scored well in the runs, covering the 100 meters in 10.8 and winning the 400-meter run in 51.5 seconds. Charles made his best showing in the sprint.

NEBRASKA LOOP SPLITS SEASON

New Race in Second Half To Get Under Way On Tenth of July.

The Nebraska State league has decided to split its 1931 pennant race in two sections, the first ending with the games of Thursday, July 9, and the second beginning Friday, July 10. Announcement of the split was made today by President Robinson of the Lincoln club, who said he had been officially informed that the six club executives had voted five to one in favor of the split.

With the York and North Platte clubs trailing the pennant parade and so far in the rear that their prospects seemed hopeless, the club heads decided that splitting the season might give the Dukes and Buffaloes opportunity to strengthen their forces and make a better race during the second half of the campaign.

With Lincoln's Links slumping badly during the past week and Grand Island forging well ahead of the pack, the Third City club evidently has a cinch advantage and presumably will bag first place laurels for the first half.

Von Elm Leads Golf Pack In Pursuit of America's Open Title

BY PAUL R. MICHELSON.

TOLEDO, O., July 4—(AP)—Forecasting one of the wildest finishes in 35 years of play, the bitter struggle for the national open golf championship rolled into its final 36-hole fight at Inverness today. It looked like a golfing Fourth of July with plenty of fireworks and the prospects for a tie in the stormy 72-hole battle for the crown Bobby Jones surrendered peacefully appeared a strong possibility.

Heading the closely bunched field of dark horses and favorites was George Von Elm, the big business man golfer, whose sensational incoming round of 32, four shots under par, upset the tournament yesterday and yanked him dramatically from the ranks of the mild threats to the whip seat of the 63-man procession still left on the field of battle, with a 36-hole score of 144 strokes.

Williams and Burke.

One shot behind the lion-hearted Prussian came a stubborn dark horse in Eddie Williams, 145-pound professional from Cleveland, and the consistently brilliant Billy Burke of Greenwich, Conn. To their rear, with threatening 146s came another trio of long shots—Herman Barron of Portchester, N. Y., Charlie Guest of Deal, N. J., and Guy Paulsen, a public fee course pro from Fort Wayne, Ind., and the veteran and ever dangerous MacDonald Smith of New York.

These seven were the vanguard in the big show at the half-way mark, but they still had a dangerous crew of favorites near enough to them to feel shaky and unsafe. Five of the best shot-makers in the game still were in the big fight with 148s—Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente, Mexico; Mortie Dutra of Long Beach, Calif.; Walter Hagen of Detroit; Johnny Farrell of New York and Joe Turnesa, pride of White Plains, N. J.

Big Shots Still Dangerous.

A dozen others, all capable of storming the treacherous course on the final 36-hole stretch with high pressure golf, were bunched within eight shots or less of the leaders, including Gene Sarazen of New York, 152; Harry Cooper, Chicago, 151; Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, 150; Al Espinosa, Chicago, 150, and Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., 151.

It seemed like a certain all-American Fourth of July celebration in the big show, however, as none of the original cast of 13 foreign entries was conceded a chance to crowd in for the title because of their set-backs on the first thirty-six holes. Percy Alliss of Germany and Fred Robson of Great Britain had 153s to lead the foreign contingent, but most of them either were out or too far to the rear to get any notice.

Armour Far In Rear.

Tommy Armour, who, with Sarazen, ranked as one of the big favorites to capture the title, appeared definitely out with a surprisingly high 158. Tommy, apparently beaten in his attempt to equal Bobby Jones' feat by winning the British and American open titles in the same year, barely qualified. Had three more players carded 157s, he would have been out. He soared to an 83 yesterday after his first round of 75.

Yesterday's second round was one of the most weird in the open's history. It seemed everything happened—good, bad and indifferent golf, sensational comebacks, such as Von Elm's 63 and Johnny Farrell's 70, the appearance of even more dark horses, and even a hole-in-one, the first in the open's history. The ace was scored by Diegel on the 146-yard thirteenth and it proved a life-saver for the "Dieg" as he was wilder than the famous wild man of Borneo most of the way.

Today's final fight called for 18 hole rounds in the morning and 18 in the afternoon. In case of a tie, a playoff at 36 holes will be held Sunday.

LINKS RIDING ON SLIPPERY SLIDE

Nunamakers Victims of Sorry Thrashing By York's Dukes.

Lincon continued to hit the bumps in the Nebraska league Friday, York hammering Sloan and Lindahl for 19 hits and trouncing the Links, 14-2. The Nunamakers got only six hits off Langkop, who toiled for the Dukes.

Grand Island halted a four-run Norfolk rally in the eighth and then chased across a run in the ninth to beat the Elkhorns, 6-5. North Platte collected 11 hits off Huff and Sommers to win a 9-3 game at McCook. The scores:

GRAIN NOTES

CHICAGO, July 4—(AP)—Bearish statistics and heavy selling by hedger and local traders are expected in the wheat market on Monday. It was said there had been considerable evening up of trades for the holiday and that the absorptive ability of the trade was insufficient to advance and sustain a higher level of prices unless there were new factors brought into the situation. The farm board situation continues as an unsettling element and there is not the confidence that there should be with prices around the present level.

Local cash interests have sold 750,000 bushels of corn in the last few days to be stored in Chicago elevators to be delivered on July contracts. For the week sales are estimated at around 1,000,000 bushels.

TWO KILLED IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Pilot and Companion Lose Lives While Stunting in Indiana.

PERU, Ind., July 4—(INS)—Two men were killed instantly today while stunting at an airport south of here.

The victims were Milo Poff, 33, proprietor of the Circus City Flying corporation, a married man; Raymond Cunningham, 19, single.

The pair had taken off in a Waco biplane and hed been looping the loop. As they made a loop the pilot apparently was unable to straighten the plane out. It made a great curve toward the ground, narrowly missed a house and crashed into a clump of trees on the George Plummer farm.

Italy Objects to Pope Publishing Note Over World

ROME, July 4—(AP)—Publication abroad of the pope's encyclical on fascism and its methods was strongly criticised in government circles today, although no official comment was forthcoming, as the text was not available.

Publication in Rome of the encyclical was held up until the appearance tonight of the newspaper Osservatore Romano. The Italian foreign office had only a brief outline of the document, which was furnished by newspapermen.

In its exchange of notes with the vatican the government already has objected to the pope's practice of discussing the controversy between the holy see and the government before the world.

The government has contended that the religious question is an internal affair and should be settled without recourse to what the government looks upon as efforts to exert world pressure on the fascist state.

$70,000 HOME FOR DOGS.

CHICAGO, July 4—(AP)—Chicago dogs are coming into their own. A $70,000 home for them has just been completed, and they will be able to move in within a few days. The humane society and other organizations worked for two years to bring about the construction of the building, which has accommodations for 300 transient dogs.

DOUMER ATTENDS JULY 4 PROGRAM

Witnesses Ceremony For American Volunteers In French Army.

PARIS, July 4—(AP)—The president of the French republic today attended an Independence day ceremony at the monument to American volunteers in the French army in the Place des Etats Unis. It was the first time the head of the government personally took part in the American celebration.

President Doumer frequently attended in past years, when he was president of the senate. This year he wished to mark his particular friendliness for Americans by honoring the affair with the presence of France's chief magistrate.

President Doumer's visit was a complete surprise. American participants in the ceremony were led by Ambassador Walter E. Edge and in charge of the French part of the program were General d'Ollones and the new president of the Paris municipal council, F. Latour.

Decorate LaFayette's Tomb.

In accordance with a custom of many years a delegation from the society of the Cincinnati went to Picpus cemetery where Miss Anne Madison Washington placed a wreath on the tomb of Lafayette. Miss Washington is a descendant of George Washington's brother, Augustine.

At the colonial exposition this evening Charles H. Burke, under commissioner for the American exhibit, headed a broadcasting program for United States transmission in which the famous band of the republican guard was heard. Other speakers on the program were Ira Nelson Morris of Chicago, former minister to Sweden, and Admiral Lacaze, war time chief of France's general staff. The admiral had a special message for Latin America.

As usual the Fourth was the American ambassador's busy day. Ambassador Edge spoke at Lafayette's tomb and latre attended a Legion of Honor reception.

He then lunched at the American Women's club where Former Premier Tardieu spoke. Tonight Mr. and Mrs. Edge will hold open house for the American colony and later will attend a reception at Paris city hall.

FLIERS OFF ON NATIONAL TOUR

15 Competing Planes Leave Detroit On 6,500-Mile Trip.

DETROIT, July 4—(AP)—Flying a blue center-wing monoplane, C. H. Sugg, Detroit pilot, led the fifteen contesting planes of the 1931 national air tour from Ford airport at 10:04 a. m., eastern standard time, today on a cross-river jump to the Walkerville, Ont., airport, the first stop on a 6,500-mile flight through eastern, central and southwestern states.

Capt. Walter Henderson, Detroit, was second away, with Jack B. Story of Detroit, following closely. The other contestants took off at one minute intervals without mishap. Eleven accompanying planes, carrying Jimmy Doolittle and Ray Collins, officials of the tour, newspapermen and passengers, followed the contestants from the airport.

The fliers planned to stop at the Walkerville airport for lunch, taking off at 1:30 p. m., today for Leroy, N. Y., the first night stop of the flight.

A crowd of several hundred watched as the planes were flagged away at one minute intervals.

Trophy For Winner.

The winner of the tour will receive possession for a year of the Edsel Ford reliability trophy, offered annually to the pilot who scores highest on a basis of plane performance, flying ability and speed over the 6,500-mile distance.

Stops will be made in 33 cities along the route, which extends from New York state into Pennsylvania, thence through Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and into Texas. From Texas the planes will turn back, returning to Detroit through middle western states and landing at Ford airport July 25.

Harry Russell, who flew a Ford tri-motor plane to win the tour last year and a major portion of the $12,500 award offered the pilots, again was a contestant in the tour this year. Capt. Lewis Yancey, noted pilot, accompanied the tour in an auto-giro, but was not a contestant.

time was mentioned as a candidate for the Italian throne. He also might have been king of Greece, but political fortunes were against him.

During the war he won fame as a soldier, but sacrificed his health. Bronchial and lung affections endangered his life several times. A weak heart complicated his illness and during recent years he lived in retirement.

The duke was 62 years old.

His chronic illness became critical a week ago and the king of Italy visited his bedside.

Boy Struck by Playmate With Broomstick Dies From Fractured Skull

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., July 4—(AP)—After playing about his home for more than a week with a fractured skull, Billy Sewell, 4, died enroute to a hospital yesterday. The boy was struck with a broomstick, police reports say, a week ago, by a girl playmate, 5 years old.

He became the oldest member of the house at the death of Representative Cooper of Wisconsin.

An anti-prohibitionist, Graham took a leading part in the prohibition hearings by the judiciary committee last session. Representative Dyer of Missouri, next in line for the chairmanhip of the committee, in event the republicans organize the next house, also is in favor of modifying the dry laws.

Offered Resignation.

Besides his important committee post, Graham served as vice chairman of the republican congressional campaign committee which position he resigned last fall because he could not support Gifford Pinchot, republican candidate for governor of Pennsylvania. The committee refused to accept the resignation, however, and Graham continued in office.

Although her continued to preside over the judiciary committee and to aid it in the formulation of legislation, Chairman Graham had been in poor health for the last several years.

The nature of his committee assignment called for not only a wide legal knowledge, but a great range of general information. Before the committee comes legislation designed to make changes in any existing laws.

Graham's death occurred at a time when faced with a possible fight for renomination next year. The new congressional redistricting bill passed by the state legislature placed Graham and two other members of the Philadelphia relegation in the same district.

The legislator is survived by his second wife, who was Miss Pauline M. Wall; a daughter of his second marriage, Mrs. Graham Wiliams, and two children by his first marriage Mrs. C. P. Wentz and Mrs. Erskine Bains.

MONUMENT TO WILSON UNVEILED

and the difference of speech which separate Poland and the United States, there are circumstances which make it natural for me to express an especial interest in this ceremony," the president said.

"It has been my own good fortune to visit Poland. It has been my good fortune to meet the illustrious citizen of Poland to whose inspiration this gathering is due. It has been my good fortune to know President Wilson, to whom it was given to play a part in the history of Poland.

Fought With Washington.

"In so doing he cannot have been forgetful of another stormy moment of the world's affairs, when Kosciusko, Pulaski and other Polish volunteers, making their way across seas so much wider and more untraveled than they are now, fought in the ragged regiments of Washington.

"The intervening century and a half have renewed and multiplied past all count these old relations between the people of our two countries. It is, therefore, particularly touching to us that a ceremony such as this should take place in Poland, on the anniversary which stands first in our calendar.

"In the name of the people of the United States, as in my own, I wish to give voice to our profound appreciation of so notable a mark of remembrance, sympathy and friendliness."

Enthusiastic Expressions.

The ceremony was marked by many expressions of enthusiasm for Mr. Wilson, the United States and Paderewski. The pianist was unable to be present because of the illness of his wife, who is in Switzerland. He is with her.

Mayor Ratajski said in his address that no one feared or envied the greatness of the United States because the United States clearly recognized that her own welfare was the welfare of all nations.

"The man whose memory we honor today," the mayor declared, "illustrated that attitude in his career and it is once more illustrated by Herbert Hoover who again is leading the United States in action for the general welfare."

The monument was dedicated by President Mosciski of Poland who, after the ceremony, escorted Mrs. Wilson on a tour of the park named after her husband.

Message Sent to Hoover.

President Mosciski sent the following message to President Hoover:

"On the occasion of the American national holiday I am anxious to renew to your excellency my own and the Polish nation's best wishes for the happinses of the great American republic. I desire to express deep gratification that the traditional friendship uniting both our nations finds this year especially cordial expression in the solemn commemoration of memories revived today by the inauguration at Poznan of the monument to President Wilson, an inauguration at which I was anxious to preside personally."

CANADIAN VICTOR DIAMOND SCULLS

HENLEY - ON-THAMES, Eng., July 4—(AP)—Bob Pearce of Hamilton, Ont., Olympic champion, today won the Diamond Sculls, classic rowing event, on the Thames from F. Bradley of Cambridge. It was the fourth time a Canadian had won the event, Jack Guest taking the title last year.

The London Rowing club's senior eight, victor over the Harvard third varsity in a preliminary heat, today won the Grand Challenge cup of the Royal Regatta for the second straight time.

The London boatload outrowed the Thames club eight in a thrilling finish, with the Duke and Duchess of York and thousands of other gaily dressed social leaders watching the contest from the banks of the Thames.

UNITED STATES AWAITING DEBT ANNOUNCEMENT

ment that France and the United States had arrived at a complete agreement on the Hoover moratorium, plan to aid Germany was confidently expected today.

The French cabinet is meeting to consider two minor points which are said to be the only barriers in the way of acceptance of the proposal by France. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Ambassador Edge will confer with Premier Laval and his colleague tonight in what is hoped will be the final session.

As the result of a lengthy meeting of the delegates last night, it was understood that four points—which the French call "minor" and the Americans "secondary"—remained to be settled. Two of these finally were eliminated, it was learned, and two are being threshed out today.

May Require Consultation.

The more important one was said to be the question whether France should be compelled to deposit a $125,000,000 guarantee fund with the Bank for International Settlements in case Germany declares a moratorium at the end of the one-year period. As this involves the Young plan, it may require consultation with signatory nations, especially Great Britain.

France was represented as feeling that she should not be forced to deposit this sum in addition to foregoing German reparations for one year. She has pointed out that the world bank has optional powers in this respect and inferentially trusted they would be invoked. A compromise on this aspect is believed to be in process.

Reach Refund Agreement.

An agreement as to the number of years Germany will have to refund the unpostponable payments of the Young plan was said to have been effected. France had suggested five years and America had insisted on twenty-five years, but they were believed to have struck a medium at some period more than ten years.

The night was enlivened by widespread rumors that M. Laval and radical Deputy Franklin-Bouillon had come to blows over the question of adjourning parliament. It was later explained that the deputy merely had placed his hand on the premier's arm with a plea for delay and that the premier had jerked away sharply. Both said no importance should be attached to the incident.

Police Unable to Find Evidence of Reported Wreck

Police were puzzled Saturday by the report of an automobile accident in which two persons were said to have been injured Friday evening at Twenty-sixth and Garfield streets. An 18-year-old girl, who said she was hurt slightly in dodging a car that crashed into another, declared a motorcycle officer was at the scene of the accident, from which an ambulance companies state no calls were received from the scene, and a check of all hospitals revealed no accident victims treated Friday night.

Miss Katherine Worster, 711 Garfield street, employed at the H. J. Whitmore home, 1567 South Twenty-eighth street, Saturday morning said she received bruises and cuts on one leg, when she fell against the curbing to avoid being struck by an automobile as it careened around the corner of Twenty-sixth and Garfield streets early Friday evening, and crashed into a car driven by a woman. Miss Worster said she observed blood on the woman's face. A baby, hurled from the car to the ground, was unhurt, according to Miss Worster.

An ambulance took the woman and the baby away, and a motorcycle officer arrived at the scene shortly aftrewards, Miss Worster said. Acting Chief Anderson said investigation failed to disclose any trace of the accident.

BRITISH SHIPS AT KIEL CANAL FIRST TIME SINCE WAR

KIEL, Germany, July 4—(AP)—Two British cruisers, the Dorsetshire and the Norfolk, newest of their type, steamed into Kiel harbor today paying their official respects for the first time since June 1914 when the visit of the British fleet was interrupted by the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand at Sarajevo in Bosnia—the event that started the World war.

The meeting today reunited as friends two men who fought each other in the battle of Jutland—Rear Admiral T. A. Eastley-Rushton and Vice Admiral Hansen, now commander of the Baltic naval station.

In the great conflict the Briton commanded on the bridge of the Southampton and the German was on the battleship Seidlitz.

EDUCATORS SELECT ATLANTIC CITY FOR NEXT CONVENTION

LOS ANGELES, July 4—(AP)—Having selected Atlantic City, N. J., for their 1932 meeting, teachers and school officials attending the National Education association convention here were enroute to their homes or on vacation trips today.

Willis A. Sutton, retiring president, estimated 22,000 persons were here for the 69th annual meeting of the association. This is more than twice the number attending any previous convention, he said.

DOUBLES TITLE TO AMERICANS

Lott and Van Ryn Down Frenchmen In Finals At Wimbledon.

WIMBLEDON STADIUM, Eng., July 4—(AP)—George Lott, Jr., and John Van Ryn of the United States today won the Wimbledon tennis doubles championship, defeating Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon of France in a rousing five-set final match. The scores were 6-2, 10-8, 9-11, 3-6, 63.

They succeed Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison of Austin, Texas, as title-holders, the old combination having won the title both in 1929 and 1930.

The veteran French pair, probable Davis cup doubles team, won the title in 1928.

Lott and Van Ryn started as though to make a runaway of the match, running out the first set from two all, but the Frenchmen tightened up their game in the second set and from there to the finish it was a battle royal. Lott played remarkable tennis in the first two sets to save the American side, as Johnny wasn't getting his shots over the net or when he did they were too long.

Lott began to break in the third set, the Frenchmen breaking his service in the nineteenth game and then winning on Cochet's to take the set 11-9. Van Ryn now was doing most of the work for the Americans and covering court as though equipped with seven league boots.

French Ladies Win.

Mlle. Doris Metaxa and Mlle. Josane Sigart of France today defeated Betty Nuthall and Eileen Bennett Whittingstall in the semi-finals of women's doubles in the Wimbledon tennis championships, 4-6, 8-6, 6-4. They will meet Mrs. D. C. Shepherd-Barron and Phyllis Mudford, another English pair, in the finals late today.

gasoline tax administration in the treasurer's office, this being $15,000 more than Bryan allowed in his budget. The increase was made by the senate finance committee after the house had voted down an amendment to make the amount $20,000. The house then accepted the senate's amendment.

Taylor is sergeant-at-arms in the senate and is said to have the backing of Perry Reed and other republican members of that body for a place on the state treasurer's gasoline tax staff. On account of his previous experience in spotting trucks and other vehicles on the highways which had not paid their license fees, and compelling the owners to make good their delinquency, he has a good chance for appointment as a gas tax sleuth.

Child Welfare Job Open.

As the result of being overruled by the legislature on another phase of his governmental reorganization program, Governor Bryan has at his disposal a good job for some woman as director of child welfare. He suggested turning that activity over to the state superintendent, but the idea was vetoed by the lawmakers, who appropriated $14,000 for salaries and wages and $6,000 for maintenance in the child welfare bureau, now temporarily discontinued.

There will be several assistants to appoint, besides the head of the bureau. Mrs. Clara Clayton of Lincoln, who had charge of the work under Bryan's previous administration, is mentioned for the same post htis time.

Contempt Citations In Maintenance Suit

Court Acts When 6 Witnesses Fail Answer Deposition Subpoeneas Of Katherine MacDonald Holmes.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., July 4—(AP)—Court contempt citations were on file here today against six witnesses who did not appear before a notary to give depositions in the separate maintenance suit of Katherine McDonald Holmes, former movie star, against Christian R. Holmes, wealthy rancher.

Citations were issued against Ivan L. Follett, Holmes' secretary, and other employes at the ranch.

Mrs. Holmes, the former "American beauty" of the screen, is in a hospital here with a broken shoulder. In her suit filed recently at Ventura, she asked that her husband, nephew of Major Max C. Fleischmann, yeast magnate, be restrained from removing her and her children from the hospital, where she has personal guards on duty.

In a demurrer, Holmes asked for a change of venue to Santa Barbara.

Wiley Post Never Satisfied Until He Learned Everything About Plane He Was Flying

"A Little Wild, But Had Plenty of Nerve," Pilot Friend Recalls; Globe Girdler Taciturn and Not a Ladies' Man.

EDITOR'S NOTE. The third installment of the life story of Wiley Post follows.

Part III.

BY LEON H. DURST.

(Copyright, 1931, By the Associated Press.)

The farm boy who used a cotton patch to obtain funds for a mechanical education had graduated from a garage mechanic to a wing-walker and parachute jumper by prevailing upon L. L. (Pete) Lewis, barnstorming pilot, to give him a job.

Lewis, now a transport pilot, says that Wiley was an avaricious student of aviation. He never was satisfied until he knew everything a plane could do. Between exhibitions he tinkered with the controls and with the motors.

"He was a little wild but he had plenty of nerve," Lewis remembers. "He was so silent the men about the fields knew little of him."

Earl Witten, Pauls Valley, Okla., aviator, who used to do stunt flying with Post, says that "whenever he heard of any new stunt in the air, Wiley would always try it in his old Curtiss canuk."

Not a Ladies' Man.

"Wiley never was much of a ladies' man," Witten says. He bought a "new flivver with all the fixings he could get, with a part of the money he got for his damaged eye. He took the girls out in that car now and then, but he always seemed more interested in flying than in girls."

He is something of a joker, too. Around Wiley's home town they tell of the time he went up to do a parachute jump, but threw a dummy out of the plane instead. Several women in the crowd fainted as the figure tumbled down out of the sky.

Soon after Wiley bought his first biplane he landed the old crate in his father's alfalfa patch and crashed into a hay rake. A wing beam was broken and Wiley patched it up with a piece of two-by-four and took off with a couple of flat tires.

Whether that incident had any bearing or not, Wiley's father didn't take much to his stunt flying. He hid Wiley's parachute one day so he couldn't jump.

Mother Proud.

"You don't care if I make a few parachute jump?" he asked his mother one day. Mrs. Post indicated some displeasure, but admitted she was proud that she had a son who could "do such things." When Wiley heard she had shown some newspaper clippings about his stunts to the Maysville News, the local weekly newspaper, he teased her and said he took that as meaning that she approved of the course he had taken.

Wiley's father left the home farm near Maysville several days before his famous son brought his 'round-the-world flight to an end to escape inquisitive visitors. He never was enthusiastic about Wiley's flying. At the same time his mother, proud but not talkative, explained how she "never did like to have my picture put in the paper."

There was no resentment on the part of the members of Wiley's family about the publicity which came in the wake of the flight. A brother in Oklahoma City declined to pose for a picture because, he explained, "the show belongs to Wiley, not me."

Has Keen Sense of Humor.

Wiley doesn't say much, but when he does there is a certain dry humor in his talk which wins friends and gets things done.

When the "Winnie Mae" was poised at Roosevelt field, waiting for favorable weather to hop around the world, a slow leak developed in one of her tires. The incident was reported to Post. He had done very little talking and seemed to be completely free of worry.

"One of the tires on the 'Winnie Mae' has gone soft, Mr. Post," a mechanic reported.

"Well, put a little Long Island air in there and we'll bring it back," Wiley drawled.

(Monday: Wiley Post meets the man who is to give him his chance, and takes another step up in the aviation world.)

World Airmen Leave Yacht for Round of Golf

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 4—(AP)—Wiley Post nd Harold Gatty, round the world fliers, today left the yacht Saelmo at the Thamts river here and went to the Shenecossett County club for a round of golf.

The fliers, with their wives, and F. C. Hall, backer of their flight, are the guests of William H. Todd, shipbuilder, on a week-end cruise.

The party planned to leave this port in the mid-afternoon for Montauk point where they were to meet former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York.

The Saelmo anchored in the harbor here about 10 o'clock last night.

Fliers Rest on Yacht.

NEW YORK, July 4—(AP)—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, globe girdlers, were today observing a day of complete independence on the yacht Saelmo in Long Island sound.

The mates of the speedy Winnie Mae, accompanied by their wives and Florence C. Hall, Oklahoma oilman, who sponsored their flight around the world, were the guests of William H. Todd on a week-end cruising and fishing expedition.

SEEKS KEEP FARM OUT OF POLITICS

Marketing Act Should Not Be An Issue in 1932, Huff, Grain Corporation Head, Says.

CHICAGO, July 4—(AP)—C. E. Huff, president of the Farmer's National Grain corporation, issued a statement asking the nation's farmers to prevent politicians from making the agricultural marketing act a 1932 issue for votes.

He added that two principal obstacles in the way of farmers' efforts to reach their ultimate goal of adequate relief were "politicians and pseudo-farm leaders with political ambitions and partisanships and selfish interests seeking to profit from handling farm products regardless of the price received by the producers."

A New King Is Crowned

Bridge lovers, and that includes most of us, are must interested in the new system of play which is gaining vogue in America. The Culbertson system, as it is known, is much simplified and is rapidly acquiring popularity with bridge players the country over.

Mrs. J. J. Snipes of Lincoln, a Culbertson teacher, has written a series of articles explaining the system, the first of which will appear in Sunday's Star and will be followed by others, both daily and Sunday. There will be three articles each week. A number of hands will be played to illustrate the Culbertson method of play. Mrs. Snipes will reproduce and discuss the hands drawn and played by Lincoln players.

You will want to follow this bridge series, the first installment of which appears in the Sunday Star of July 5.

THE STAR DAILY PATTERN. WARM WEATHER CHIC PATTERN 1960. BY ANNE ADAMS.

Shoulder capelets assume new personality when they continue down the bodice in narrow points, and slimness is easily achieved, together with the downward point of the skirt flare. Sleeves are included with Pattern 1960, but they need not be added until the sultry days are gone You'll love this model made of georgette, voile, batiste, dimity, lawn or flat crepe The belt and bow of fabric may be replaced by colored ribbon for an added chic touch

Obtainable only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36 38 40 and 42 Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch fabric Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern Write plainly your name, address and style number BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

THE PATTERN CATALOG features an excellent assortment of afternoon, sports and house dresses, lingerie, pajamas and kiddies' clothes also delightful accessory patterns PRICE OF CATALOG, FIFTEEN CENTS. BIG NAVY URGED BY LEGION CHIEF

O'Neil Says America is Gambling With Security of Citizens.

Pacifists Oposing Funds For Defense Called Most Dangerous.

MURPHY, N. C., July 4—(AP)—America, in neglecting to build up its navy, is gambling with the security of its citizens, Ralph T. O'Neil national commander of the American Legion, told a gathering of legionnaires from North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia and Tennessee here today.

"Permanent peace has attracted a large portion of the energy of legion patriotism—the patriotism of men who abhor war from personal experience—but the time has come when the pacifist elment in America must be scotched in its efforts to strip the nation of its defensive forces," the speaker said.

"In speaking of what he described as the dangers of ultra-pacifism, the national commander classified them in three groups.

The "Red" Menace.

"The first," he said, 'consists of a comparatively few communists from the steppes of Russia, well supplied with money. They advocate disarmament in this country so that they can the more easily set up and establish a worldwide soviet regime."

Placed in the second group were those Americans who profess to believe complete disarmament will mean permanent peace. 'Their chief danger," he said, "lies in that numerically greater group which swallows a portion of their sophistry and, through lack of understanding, gives comfort to many fallacies"

The third group he called the more dangerous because, "by continual objections of necessary expenditures for adequate national defense they would weaken our national defense structure to such an extent that, although the skeleton would remain, a new body would have to be built after an emergency had burst upon us."

AIMEE'S SON WILL MARRY OKLAHOMA GIRL THIS MONTH

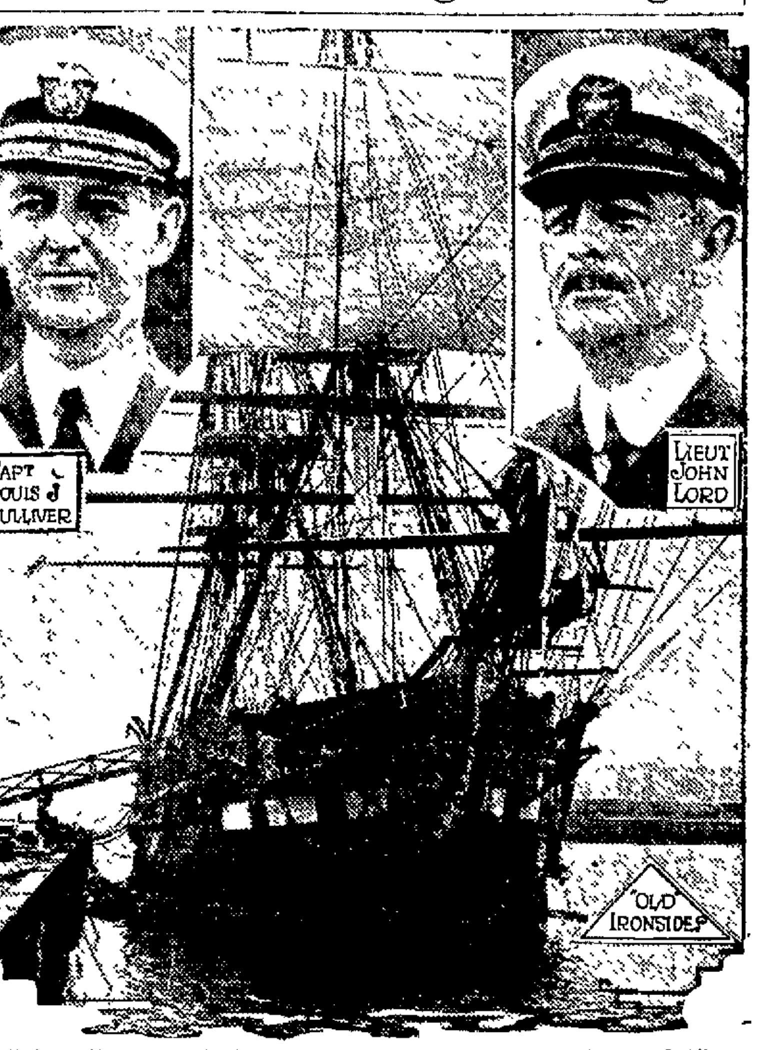

LOS ANGELES, July 4—(AP)—Aimee Semple McPherson today confirmed a dispatch from Alva, Okla, saying her son, Rolf, would be married July 21 to Miss Lorna D. Smith of Alva. The evangelist said she would perform the ceremony. Miss Smith completed her evangelistic training at the temple a short time ago.

"I guess congratulations are due for almost all members of the McPherson family," she added, referring to the recent weddings of her daughter, Roberta, and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy

IOWA BOY LOSES EYE.

MASON CITY, Ia., July 4—(AP)—A premature Fourth of July celebration cost the sight of the right eye of Leroy James, 11, son of T. N. James of Rockwell last night. A can in which he had placed a lighted firecracker flew up and struck him in the eye.

Famous 'Old Ironsides' Ready To Sail the High Seas Again

(By International Illustrated News)

In these Twentieth century days, the Stars and Stripes whip in the breeze over many a mighty American warship, yet on none does it wave so proudly as o'er the reconditioned Yankee frigate, U. S. S. Constitution.

This grand old ship of another day in the annals of the United States is no less a personification today of the traditions of our land and its naval forces than on the day in October, 1797, that it was launched on its glorious career.

Under a full set of canvas, held to the winds by new staunch masts and stays, its hull rebuilt with great timbers shipped for its rebirth from a section which was wilderness when the Constitution first touched water, "Old Ironsides" is once more ready to prove to an admiring world that its name was not given it in vain

Now, after several years of reconditioning and refitting under the direction of Lieut. John Lord, U. S. N., at the Boston navy yard, the Constitution is ready to make a tour of the ports of the United States under the command of Capt. Louis J. Gulliver, U. S N. Reborn to the glory of its former self, this gallant frigate which wrote such colorful chapters in American history will soon be navigating under billowing canvas that all may witness and hark back to the days of her priceless service to the nation.

Starts Brilliant Career.

Launched at Hartt's shipyard at Boston October 21, 1797, the Constitution was commissioned in 1798 and immediately took part in the first of what was to be many stirring events on the high seas Following the suppressing of French privateers in the West Indies in 1798, the Constitution bombarded the forts at Tripoli in 1804 and forced peace without further tribute on four Corsair states and liberated 115 American prisoners in slavery.

Possibly the most glorious engagement of its long and justly famous life came when the swift and deadly U. S. frigate met and defeated the British frigate Guerriere, and thereby won the name "Old Ironsides," during the 1812 war with England. It was when the cannon balls fired by the Guerriere were turned aside by the stout timbers of the Constitution that Yankee seamen cried, "Huzza, her sides are made of iron." And the name stuck where the shot had not.

Defeat of the Guerriere and nineteen other British warships between 1812 and 1815 by the Constitution turned the tide of victory to the United States and thoroughly broke the tradition of British supremacy at sea.

From 1821 to 1858 "Old Ironsides" was stationed in the Mediterranean and helped suppress slave trade along the African coast. Between 1861 and 1870 the frigate served as a training ship for the midshipmen at Annapolis and in 1879 it took its last cruise when it arried the American exhibits to the Paris Exposition.

Rebuilt With Subscriptions.

For years the Constitution lay rotting at Boston, the mecca of many visitors, but physically a worn-out wreck, a mere shadow of its former tower of strength. Finally, though popular subscription and an appropriation by Congress, "Old Ironsides" began to be reconditioned. until, today, she is once more ready to take to sea—a wonderful, living example of the heroic work she did to preserve our nation in its early days.

All hail to this grand old ship. May her canvas and colors never be furled again!

Winner in Marble Game is Slain by Young Companion

YAREDO, Tex., July 9—(AP)—Manuel Carmono, district attorney, said today the steady winning of Horacio Martinez, 11, in a game of marbles had led to his death at the hands of a playmate in Nuevo Laredo, across the border.

The playmate, Marcos Baquer, 8, sobbed as he told of attempting to frighten Horacio with a rifle he said he believed to be unloaded. The Martinez boy fell fatally wounded when the weapon discharged.

FINISH PLANS FOR ILEANA'S WEDDING

Rumanian Princess Will Marry On July 26; King Carol to Give Her Away to Archduke.

BUCHAREST, July 4—(AP)—Plans for the wedding of Princess Ileana and Archduke Anton at Sinaia on July 26 were announced in court circles today.

King Carol will go to the summer palace about July 15 and will be followed a week later by the Dowager Queen Marie and the princess herself. Archduke Anton, awaiting the arrival of his parents in Bucharest will proceed there July 23.

The wedding will be of the simplest character in order that the occasion will mean no extra outlay to Rumanian social circles and the populace, hard pressed by the economic and financial depression.

The king will give away Princess Ileana at a church ceremony and will be the first witness at a civil ceremony in the large reception room of the castle in the presence of Premier Jorga.

The civil ceremony will be presided over by M. Hamangju, minister of justice. It is still to be announced what the nature of the church ceremony will be, but it is believed that concessions will be made in favor of the archduke who comes of a pious Roman Catholic family. It is believed that the ceremony will be followed by a medium service in the orthodox church.

Invitations have been issued to the archduke's family, though it is believed that not all of his brothers and sisters will be present, to the royal family of Jugoslavia and to former King George and Queen Elizabeth of Greece.

HEARS BROADCAST: DIES.

ROCKAWAY, Ore., July 4—(INS)—Excitement of the Schmeling-Stribling fight account broadcast over the radio last night proved too much for John Butler, 86-year-old storekeeper, who suffered a stroke of paralysis and died while listening in on the distant battle. Butler had been ill for the past two years.

Employes Work on Holiday To Prepare For Highway Letting

The Fourth of July was no holiday for the state highway department

With the next major letting of the year scheduled for July 9, work is being pushed for long hours to get plans and specifications ready for bidders and the Fourth was no exception

Nearly half of the engineering force was at work Saturday morning, including practically all of the executives. Many of the draughtsmen worked until midnight Friday so as to have Saturday off.

Except for the activity in the highway department and visitors sight-seeing at the capitol, the building was practically deserted Saturday. The state sheriff's office was open and a few other clerks and officials were in their offices doing odd tasks.

CAR PRESENTED TO MISS LANTZ AT CORONATION BALL

As a climax to a spirited five weeks campaign, Miss Florence Lantz was presented with a sport roadster at the "Miss Victory" contest coronation ball Friday night at Capitol beach. The formal presentation was made by C. L. Clark, general chairman of the "Siege of 1918," and Harry Ball, commander of Lincoln Post No. 3 American Legion.

Miss LaVerne Goldstein, winner of second place in the contest, was given a diamond ring and the six girls finishing next in order were presented with dinner rings. A bouquet of flowers also was given to Miss Lantz. Verne Newcombe, one of those in charge of presenting the "Siege of 1918," acted as master of ceremonies at the coronation.

Graham's Death Leaves G.O.P. With Majority One in Next Congress

WASHINGTON, July 4—(AP)—The death of Representative George S. Graham of Pennsylvania, at Islip, N. Y., today, was the sixth among members of the next house. The republicans and democrats now have lost an equal number, three each

The republicans still have a majority of one, with 215 against 214 for the democrats. There is one farmer-labor member and five vacancies remain to be filled.

One democratic vacancy, caused by the death of Representative Aswell of Louisiana has already been filled by another democrat, John Overton.

BATON PASSERS UNDER LIGHTS

Relay Race Program On A. A. U. Meet Card For Tonight.

World famous athletes will pass the baton under the bright lights at the University of Nebraska Memorial stadium tonight. The program, which will be the first night athletic event ever staged in the stadium, is scheduled to get under way at 8 o'clock and includes the national relay championships, as well as a number of special events.

Individual events on the card list the three-mile walk, with the national champion, Harry Hinkle, defending his title; the pole vault, with such stars as Sturdy, Warne, McDermott and Colyer; the high jump, with Osborn and Spitz, world record-holders; O'Connor, Burg, Jones, LaSallette, Marty and Juday; and the steeplechase, with the national champion, Joe McCluskey, defending his title.

The medley shotput contest, which will be staged in front of the stands, includes Pat McDonald, famous Olympic star; Herman Brix, national weight champion; Leo Sexton, national 56-pound weight champion and others.

Capone at Mercy of Jurist

United States Judge James H. Wilkerson (left) once before sentenced Al Capone, but Chicago's erstwhile gang czar appealed his case and gave the "rap" the laugh. Now "Scarface Al" (right) has no appeal when he hears the jurist's sentence on his plea of guilty to income tax evasions, July 30.

A. A. U. Meet Notes.

Bernie Knew His Laps.

Bernie Masterson took lots of punishment in the three-mile walk to be high scorer for Nebraska university, but he never lost his gameness. Lapped twice by the winner, Masterton came by the crowd and some one said: "He has one more to go, doesn't he?"

Bernie turned and grinned at the stand. "Two more," he said positively.

The walkers had a style all their own, sort of a combination of a shimmy dancer and a round-shouldered jumping jack, for the two first place winners. Tigerman, who took second, is a Chicago policeman and walks a beat near Loyola university. There he coaches the track team free so as to retain his amateur standing.

John J. McHugh, New York City starter, was the most noticeable man on the field, despite the star athletes. He wore a brilliant red cap that could have been seen for miles.

Kept the Wires Busy.

Burnett, little Mississippi freshman who set new meet records in winning both the 100 and 220-yard dashes, kept the telegraph operators busy. L. di Benedetto, southern A. A. U. official, sent out a wire when the lad set a record in the 100 preliminaries, another when he won the 100 and a third one when the 220 was safely in the bag.

All Nebraska got a wallop out of the performance of Frank Lydic, Kearney State Teachers, who startled the mile run field by leaving the rest flat-footed at the beginning of the last lap to string in an easy winner in new record time. Ted James, former crack Cornhusker center and now Kearney coach, had a smile a yard wide the rest of the afternoon.

For sheer grit, Friday honors went to Carl Gericke of the Oympic club in the six mile run. He was finally pulled by his coach and teammates, out on his feet. But before they took him out, he had run a good half-mile, practically out on his feet. Staggering, unconscious where he was, his face a blank, he kept fighting forward. His face would clear for a minute and he would run determinedly a short distance, only to falter, wobble and stagger onwards.

Successor to Jim Bausch.

Kansas will forget all about Jim Bausch as a shot putter in a few years, the wiseacres were predicting Friday after watching Elwyn Dees, Lorain, Kas., high school youth. Winner of first place in the nation high school meet, he took third in the junior A. A. U. shot Friday. He is a splendidly built chap, already a first-class performer.

Another of this year's national high school champions who made a successful showing Friday was Amsden Oliver, lanky colored lad from Dayton, O., who set a new record in the low hurdles. Oliver was so big and had such an easy stride that it looked as if he were coming down over the hurdles instead of going up over them.

Beecher, Indiana university pole vaulter, was a mystery in this event because of his short pole. When the cross-bar got up in the higher brackets, his pole scarcely reached the bar.

Late Getting Started.

After waiting around most of the afternoon for the final event on the program—the six-mile run—George Harback of Denver was seated in the dressing room when the race started. He tore out of the room, rushed down to the starter and asked if he still could get in the race. Granted permission, he set sail after the harriers, who were 300 yards ahead. Harback finished fourth.

A crowd of more than 3,000 watched the Friday meet, the attendance being a good thousand ahead of the opening day of the 1927 meet here. The day was ideal for the spectators, a slight cross wind, which occasionally faced the runners, kept the temperature cool for the track fans.

Fliers Ready for Non-Stop Refuel Hop Over Pacific

SEATTLE, July 4—(AP)— Bent on a non-stop, midair refueling flight from here to Tokyo, Re L. Robbins and H. S. Jones today marked time awaiting the arrival of their refueling ship in Alaska. They said they expected to get away before dawn tomorrow.

The refueling ship, held over at Edmonton, Alta., was to leave the Canadian city today for the 1,600-mile flight to Fairbanks. It is a tri-motored plane, flown by J. J. Mattern and Nick Greener.

Reports from various points in Alaska were that excelent flying conditions prevailed at least to the coast of Siberia.

Law Observance Theme of Radio Talk by Poteet

A plea for law observance was made Independence day morning by Marcus L. Poteet, department commander of the American Legion, in a radio address over the Wesleyan station, WCAJ.

"We talk about law enforcement instead of law observance," Mr. Poteet declared. "We criticize the one who breaks the law but we stand by and see it broken without any attempt to help enforce it. We must observe all laws, not just those we believe in.

"The man who violates the law in one breath is in a poor position to invoke its protection in the next breath. If anything ever destroys America it will be the lack of law observance, which is a wholesale disregard of the rights of others. No nation can long endure after it has abandoned the Golden rule.

"What the world needs today is more men of the type of our revolutionary forefathers, men who are willing to fight for their convictions. Today too many men are looking to see which direction the parade is moving so that they can get out in front and try to delude the public and themselves into believing they are leaders.

"Many would rather be out in front of the parade than to be right."

BURLINGTON'S NET INCOME FOR MAY GAINS OVER 1930

One of the fey railroads in the United States which was able to show an increase net income from operations during the month of May this year, compared with the same month of 1930, is the Burlington. That road has a greater track mileage in Nebraska than in any other state, and its relatively good showing is due in part to the fact that general business conditions in this and neighboring states have been better than for the country as a whole.

At that, however, the Burlington would have registered a shrinkage of net earnings for May if it had not been for a sharp reduction of its operating expenses. The gross revenue was considerably below what was taken in during that month a year ago—$9,270,321 compared with $11,019,177.

Costs of operation were cut nearly 30 per cent. Net revenue in May this year amounted to $1,385,551 as against $1,097,562 a year ago, the ratio of increase being 26 per cent.

For the first five months of 1931 the Burlington's net income amounted to $8,890,370. In the same period of 1930 it earned $10,934,417 net. The decrease was 18.7 per cent.

Gross earnings for the five months went down from $56,749,571 last year to $47,779,286 this year, or 15.8 per cent decrease.

Carnera Next Foeman For Schmeling In Title Bout

CLEVELAND, July 4—(AP)—Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, will fight Max Schmeling, world's champion, Sept. 17, Leon See, Carnera's manager, announced early today.

See said he had formed a definite agreement with Joe Jacobs, the champion's manager, as to the time, but the location of the bout has not been decided upon.

How well does your money go 'round?

Almost every couple feels that the family income is too small. And the strange fact is that as the income increases it still seems too small, even to a point far beyond what once appeared to be a very comfortable amount.

Meanwhile they see their friends of surely comparable income apparently able to have whatever they wish. The reason is simple:

Those friends are better buyers. When they spend, they spend wisely and well. The selection of an article for the home is based on sound qualities that eliminate the likelihood of early replacement. The purchase of a suit or dress is made only when and where there is advantageous value. Real bargains that fit in with needs are never overlooked. The comparative merits of rival brands are always known and understood.

There is only one way to become this kind of buyer. You must know what's for sale, at what price and where. You must know not only SOMETIMES but ALL the time, else the opportunities that count may pass unnoticed.

The way to know is to watch The Star . . . AND READ THE ADVERTISING. Star advertising announces special bargains. Star advertising regularly describes the distinctive features of various brands and makes. Star advertising tells you where to get locally the articles you hear and read of everywhere. Star advertising is, in short, the one great BUYER'S GUIDE.

Be a wise buyer. Get the most for your money. Follow Star advertising.
